Third Major Lighter-than-air Craft Tragedy in U. S. Fleet History Since 1925—Radioman and Mess Sergeant Are Sought Today—Lieut. Commander Wiley in Charge of Huge Silver Ship 110 Miles South of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Feb. 13 (AP)—The giant dirigible Macon, destroyed by a sudden mysterious disaster, lay at the bottom of the Pacific ocean today, while 81 survivors were being brought into San Francisco Bay by cruisers of the United States fleet. Only two members of the crew were missing.

The tragic fate of every American made giant dirigible the navy has possessed, overtook the queen of the skies as she neared her Sunnyvale base at sunset last night.

Gas Cells Burst
One or two of her 12 gas cells suddenly burst as she sped through squally air and fog 110 miles south of San Francisco.

The delicately balanced craft nosed abruptly skyward and the immediate efforts of Lieutenant Commander Herbert V. Wiley, skipper of the Macon, and survivor of the Akron disaster, to balance the ship proved futile.

Lands on Ocean
Under his orders the unmanageable dirigible landed, stern first, on the water 10 miles off Point Sur. She sank almost immediately but her crew had taken to rubber lifeboats and all but two men were picked up by the cruisers Richmond, Concord and Cincinnati.

The exact fate of the two missing men—Radio Man Ernest Dailley, North Bend, Ore., and Florentino Equibua, Filipino mess sergeant—was not determined. Dailley presumably broke his back in a 125 foot leap from the ship before it landed. Equibua was last seen aboard.

Searching parties were ordered to leave Mare Island naval base this morning to search for their bodies.

Third Disaster

It was the third, though least tragic disaster to overtake great airships of the United States fleet. The Akron crashed with a loss of 73 lives April 4, 1933, and the Shenandoah eight years earlier with a loss of 14 of her crew.

If the two missing men are not found, the Macon crash will bring to 350 the number of lives lost in 15 major dirigible crashes in the world in the past 23 years.

The exact cause of the disaster apparently was not known by the naval officers themselves whose critical wireless messages told the dramatic story of the end of the Macon and the rescue of most of her crew.

Wiley's Story of Crash.

Wiley's story of the crash follows: "While off Pt. Sur, a course north all engines standard speed 63 knots, altitude 1,200 feet, air squally, about 5:18 p. m. (P. S. T.) a casualty occurred in stern."

"I thought elevator control carried away. Ship took a bow up inclination, rose rapidly."

"Ordered all ballast and fuel slip tanks dropped at midship. Received prompt word number 1 gas cell under fire was gone and stern was crumbling and finally that number 2 cell was gone."

"Tried to land ship near cruisers off Pt. Sur but could not see surface until shortly before landing."

"The ship landed stern first with no way on (no speed ahead) at 5:40. All hands took to rubber boats and saw ship finally sink. Discipline excellent and all hands had alarm in time to don life jackets."

As soon as Wiley sent out his SOS reports the ship was "falling." SOS reporting the ship was "falling."

Three ships breaking from the volume of cruisers, with the aid of their powerful searchlights and cadmium flares let off by the Macon, quickly picked up the 81 survivors. The Richmond took aboard 61, the Concord 11, the Cincinnati 4, and continued to San Francisco.

Former Activities

Months before the great airship crashed into the ocean yesterday, she had been theoretically destroyed in war maneuvers with the combined battle fleets in the Caribbean sea last May.

After the war games, navy officials declared the Macon had suffered theoretical destruction but only after performance of her mission in locating the "enemy" fleet.

The Macon arrived at New Sunnyvale base about 15 miles south of here, October 13, 1933, after a 70-hour journey from Lakehurst across the southern United States.

She made frequent voyages from her base, once to the Caribbean maneuvers, again to the cruiser carrier fleet, and another time across the Pacific northwest. She was

Ethiopia, Italy Agree On Zone of Neutrality To Be Named by Group

Italy Is Ready to Spend $50 Millions For a Two-year Campaign in Africa If Hostilities Break Out.

Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, Feb. 13.—The Ethiopian and Italian governments agreed today to the establishment of a neutral zone where hostilities recently have occurred and to appoint a boundary commission.

The agreement was reached by representatives of the two nations after several days of intensive debates.

First reports of the understanding said that a commission to be appointed would investigate the situation which has arisen between Ethiopia and Italy over the boundaries of this empire and the Italian colonies of Somaliland and Eritrea and would attempt to end the boundary dispute.

The Italian minister to Ethiopia was said to be authorized by his government to arrange for the delimitation of the disputed frontier and to have been instructed to make arrangements to minimize the danger of additional clashes.

850 Millions For Campaign
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)
Rome, Feb. 13.—The Italian government was said authoritatively today to be ready to spend $850,000,000 on a two-year military campaign in Africa in the event hostilities break out with Ethiopia.

The Italian military plans became known as Negrasda Yesus, Ethiopian charge d'affaires, handed Fulvio Suvich, under secretary of foreign affairs, Emperor Haile Selassie's defiant retort holding Italy responsible for the frontier conflicts which precipitated the present crisis.

Undiplomatic
The Ethiopian communication, a government spokesman said, created a "serious situation." He described as undiplomatic procedure the action of the Ethiopian envoy in making his sovereign's message public before it had been presented to the Italian government.

It was learned Italy is recruiting 5,000 physicians for colonial service. A battalion of 300 Fascist militia left Rome for Sidi el 7 a. m. with full colonial equipment.

The militia marched to the railroad station by a circuitous route skirting the main streets. Every effort is being made to keep the troop movements from disturbing the capital.

The only information on the crisis published so far by Italian newspapers has been two government communiques Monday, one announcing the mobilization and the other the skirmish at Addis.

They have also carried accounts of favorable reactions in London, Paris and Geneva to the Italian stand.

General Graziani
General Rudolf Graziani, former governor of Cirenica, it was learned, is not at Massawa, capital of Eritrea, as a member of the staff of General Emilio De Bono, high commissioner for the colony. It was considered likely he would command any military expedition into Ethiopia, although no leader has yet been named.

General Graziani was in charge of the Italian forces which suppressed a native rebellion in Cirenica.

Following his interview with Under-Secretary Suvich, Charge d'Affaires Yesus told the Associated Press:

"Signor Suvich assured me that neither King Victor Emanuel nor Premier Mussolini wanted war and I assured him that Ethiopia did not want war."

He said his discussion in the foreign office revolved on the question of which side was the aggressor in the fighting at Addis last month.

Not To Blame
The Ethiopian envoy said he could not give Suvich's reaction to Emperor Haile Selassie's note but remarked: "The emperor himself has informed me that Ethiopia is not to blame for the border conflict."

Yesus said he believes certain tribes near the frontier with Italian Somaliland were trying to stir up trouble between the two countries. He said he now was awaiting instructions from Addis Ababa regarding the next move.

Hauptmann's Fate Now In Hands Of Jury

A STOLID GERMAN CARPENTER AWAITS THE ANSWER

The evidence is in—the jury is out—and Bruno Richard Hauptmann, still stolid and inscrutable, awaits the answer to his fate in his trial moment when the twelve men and women of the jury will solemnly file back into the room and take their places in the jury box. He, and the staid Press Photos

Jury May Return Three Possible Verdicts—Murder First Degree, Same With Mercy and Acquittal, Says Judge.

TAKE EXCEPTIONS

Defense Takes Numerous Exceptions To Charge of Judge Thomas W. Trenchard.

By WILLIAM A. KINNEY
(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 13.—The jury trying Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the kidnapping and murder of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., began its deliberations today after being instructed that it could return three possible verdicts—murder in the first degree, the same with recommendation for life imprisonment, or acquittal.

The final charge of the court paid particular attention to the disputed reliability of the important state witnesses, Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon and Amandus Hockmuth, and to the defense theories that a gang perpetrated the crime and that the dead (sidor) Flech gave Hauptmann the ransom he had.

"Do you believe that?" were the concluding words of the court's remarks about each of these defense contentions.

Defense exceptions to the charge were heard after the jury retired at 11:23 a. m.

The defense took a general exception to the whole charge and objected specifically to what it said was the court's inference that the Lindbergh nursery had been entered by means of a ladder, that the baby had been carried down a ladder, that the baby's sleeping suit had been ripped off where a thumbguard was found in Hunterdon county, and that first degree murder would lie if a burglary was shown.

Objection also was taken to the court's remarks about the manner of the baby's death, to the court's failure to mention any defense witnesses aside from the defendant, and to comparison made between the defense and state witnesses. Arguments for the exceptions took fifty minutes of the court's time after the jury retired. The defense objected to the failure of the court to deliver twelve other instructions it had suggested. Adjournment was taken at 12:03 p. m.

Hauptmann was led from the court room, back to his cell, when the attorneys completed their arguments on the charge. Instructions were not to bring him back until the jury is ready with a verdict.

When the verdict comes, the court ruled, only the interested parties, including Mrs. Hauptmann, the attorneys and the press are to be allowed in the courtroom. The room was cleared, with the exception of these, at the request of Attorney General David T. Wilentz. Mrs. Hauptmann moved out slowly. The spectators sat at the defense counsel table with two friends. The attorneys chatted near the judge's bench.

Will Await Tolling of Bell.

A short time later Mrs. Hauptmann made her way through the crowds to the yellow frame house where she has been staying. She will wait there for the tolling of the court house bell, which will mean a verdict.

In the defense argument over the instructions, Frederick A. Pope of defense counsel, said he thought the judge had "a curious misconception of the evidence" in referring to the thumb guard as having been tied to the baby's sleeping suit.

"Our recollection of the evidence," said Pope, "is that this thumb guard was tied around the wrist of the child, but on the outside of the sleeping suit and in no way fastened to the sleeping suit."

Justice Trenchard's charge, though brief, was sharp and to the point. It reviewed a number of the defense contentions with conclusions of "Do you believe that?"

On the state's important ladder evidence, the court asked the jurors: "Have not the evidence satisfy you that at least a part of the wood from which the ladder was built came out of the flooring of the attic of the defendant?"

"If you find that the murder was committed by the defendant in perpetrating a burglary in the first degree," the court said, "even though the killing was unintentional."

"If there is a reasonable doubt that the murder was committed by the defendant in perpetrating a burglary, he must be acquitted."

He asked the jurors if there was any doubt in their minds as to the reliability of the testimony of Dr. John F. (Jafse) Condon, the ransom intermediary who said he paid Hauptmann Lindbergh's $50,000.

He asked them if they believed the defense contention that a gang perpetrated the crime.

Referring to the testimony of Arthur Kessler, wood expert, on the ladder, he said: "You should consider the marks upon the wood and give the evidence in regard to these marks weight as you think it entitled to after a careful consideration of the evidence."

P. G. Ten Eyck Heads State Markets, Baldwin Raps Milk Control Act

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—New York state today dropped Charles H. Baldwin as commissioner of agriculture and handed his job over to Peter G. Ten Eyck, business executive and gentleman farmer.

Governor Lehman's nomination of Ten Eyck, an "Independent Democrat" was confirmed last night by the senate. The new commissioner, ready to probe his way cautiously into the problems of 700,000 New York farm people, said he would actually move into his new office Friday.

Although Ten Eyck said he would work out his plans gradually, he indicated that he will seek to develop more "cooperative effort" among farmers. He issued a statement pledging himself to run the department of agriculture and markets without fear or favor, free of politics, and in the interest of the people of the state.

Ten Eyck takes office as a result of the overthrow of the Republican-controlled council of agriculture and markets. Commissioner Baldwin, a Republican, is said to be slated for a job with one of the large milk cooperatives.

Scores Milk Control

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—Taking potshots at "politics in milk," Charles H. Baldwin, deposed state commissioner of agriculture, in an address today urged New York state dairy farmers to get the government out of their business at the earliest possible date.

"I am hoping that before present conditions prevail too long," he said addressing Cornell University's 25th annual farm and home week visitors, "a sincere effort will be made to strain the politics—the government control—from milk, and that dairy-men will temporarily forget any selfish advantage that they may have at the present time and will look into the future and to the benefits that will come to all by taking full advantage of the responsibilities of voluntary cooperation."

"Government control and price fixing is too complicated and cannot possibly, with present powers, accomplish for the dairymen what could easily and very simply be secured by 100 per cent cooperation on the part of every dairy man who is a part of this milk shed."

Quarantine Physician Dies
Queens, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—Dr. Owen C. Tarbox, 74, well known physician of this city, is dead at his home where he succumbed last night after a brief illness. He resided here since 1902. Dr. Tarbox was a native of Bangor.

Patman Finds Joker In Legion Bonus Bill

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Advocates of the Patman bill to pay the soldiers' bonus with new currency reported with obvious glee today that they had found a "nullifying joker" in the American Legion's bonus bill.

Representative Patman (D-Texas) was one of the discoverers. He said the Legion bill, which proposes immediate payment of the $2,100,000,000 bonus concludes with this language: "There is hereby authorized to be appropriated such amounts as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this act."

"That," Patman said, "would not even let the treasury issue new bonds to pay off the certificates. If the Legion's plan is followed, Congress will have to pass two bills—this first one 'authorizing' an appropriation and a later one actually making the appropriation."

"It begins to look to me as though the national commander of the Legion (Frank N. Belgrano, Jr.) has served a double curve on us. Why, this Legion bill is just a make-believe bill."

Fearon Attacks Lehman Budget

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—Senator George R. Fearon, Republican minority leader, shot a stinging barrage of criticism at Governor Lehman today as the legislature prepared to vote on the Lehman budget and tax program.

Fearon charged in a formal statement that the governor's plan to balance his $224,000,000 budget next summer is based on $52,000,000 in overestimated revenue, and that the Democratic majority is attempting to conceal the state's financial condition.

He declared that Mr. Lehman's estimate of $5,000,000 in increased revenue from insurance taxes is "an example of how the governor has overestimated the revenue from his new taxes." The taxes now produce only $1,300,000, Fearon said, and if increased would raise only $2,000,000 more.

Doris Duke Marries J.H.R. Cromwell Today

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—Obtaining a marriage license this morning, Doris Duke, tobacco heiress and "the richest girl in the world," was reported to have been married shortly afterwards to James Henry Roberts Cromwell, New York advertising man. The ceremony is said to have taken place at Miss Duke's town house, 1 East 78th street.

Not wishing publicity, Miss Duke had Philip A. Hines, deputy city clerk, visit her house and issue the license there. Her physician, Dr. Richard H. Hoffman, told Mr. Hines that the excitement of publicity might be injurious to her nervous system.

Miss Duke, daughter of the late James Buchanan Duke, came into control of one-third the Duke fortune on her 21st birthday on November 21, 1933. Her entire legacy at that time was estimated at $30,000,000.

The slim blond heiress, who is described by her mother as a "serious child," is 16 years younger than Mr. Cromwell, who is in the advertising business.

Mr. Cromwell, the son of Oliver Eaton Cromwell and the former Eva Roberts, was divorced in Reno September 28, 1928, from Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell, daughter of the late Horace Dodge, automobile manufacturer.

48 BIRTHS DURING JANUARY AND LIKE NUMBER OF DEATHS

At the board of health meeting Tuesday night, Registrar Miss Mildred Schwab, reported 48 births during the month of January, three less than the same month in 1934.

There were 48 deaths reported, in comparison to 52 last year. The infant mortality for January just passed was 42.5 and for last year, 22.2. The death rate per thousand was 13.7 this year and January of 1934, it was 12.4.

According to Mrs. Mary O'Neil, public health nurse, there were 40 cases of measles during January and 11 cases of scarlet fever, that she stated during the past month.

TO RESTORE GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES SALARIES

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Full restoration of government salaries effective April 1 was approved today by President Roosevelt, but he gave notice that Congress must provide means to meet this and any other increases in the regular budget.

He called attention that restoring the last five per cent of the original 15 per cent cut in government salaries on April 1, instead of July 1 as recommended, would cost the government $24,000,000.

Tax Return Publicity Called Snoopers' Aid

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—With the approach of another income tax filing date next month, a drive is being pushed in Congress to stop publicity about taxpayers' returns.

Complaining that it is "the greatest scientific aid ever given to criminals," Representative Bell (D-Wyo.) introduced a bill yesterday to repeal the section in the 1934 revenue act which makes portions of the returns available for public inspection.

His was the second step toward this end at the present session. "The publicity on income tax information would allow kidnappers to ply scientifically their nefarious practices with the greatest menace to the American people," said Bell, a former Kansas City circuit court judge.

"Widows, unsuspecting property owners and those who had recently come into wealth would be the living quarry of every promoter of fraudulent stock schemes and rackets. Business men would be subjected to unfair advantages by unscrupulous competitors."

Representative Bacon (R-N.Y.), who calls the present law "an invitation to snooping," is the author of a similar resolution.

Roosevelt Forces And A. F. of L. Meet

Washington, Feb. 13 (AP)—Roosevelt forces and A. F. of L. leaders went to the mat today in a major test of congressional strength.

The President hoped for a breakthrough in the jam which has locked his $4,880,000,000 work and relief bill in the senate appropriations committee for nearly three weeks.

The committee planned to vote before the end of the day on a motion to throw out the McGarran "overruling war" amendment, which it wrote into the bill against Roosevelt's wishes last week.

The amendment proposes that relief workers be paid wages prevailing in the different communities. The President has insisted on lower rates on the ground these would encourage men from leaving private employment for relief jobs. The Senate that administration officials have advocated is $50 a month.

Confirm Nominations

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13 (AP)—The New York legislature today in joint session at noon today to confirm the nominations of Miss Susan Brandeis, daughter of Justice Louis B. FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

"Detecting" a Crime.
Reading, Pa.—Daniel Dudley, private detective, sat in the office of Alderman Charles Lease, conferring on a prospective case.

They faced a window, and outside at the curb was the detective's automobile.

"That fellow there certainly knows a good car when he sees one," said Dudley. "Look how he's giving my new machine the once over."

"M-u-m-m," agreed the alderman.

"Now look," said Dudley, he's taking a peek inside. Maybe he wants to buy one like—hey! "Stop thief!"

City police are helping the private detective look for his stolen car.

Auto Suggestion.
St. Louis—George P. Manley doesn't feel the time is right for him to purchase a new automobile, so he has decided to seek a divorce instead.

In a divorce petitioned here he said his wife kept him awake nights trying to persuade him to buy a new automobile until he was required to leave home to avoid a nervous breakdown.

An Ancient Missile.
Bloomington, Ill.—If T. B. Correll feels like doing any brick tossing, he can heave a missile 2,134 years old.

The brick, once a part of the Great Wall of China, was given Correll by his grandson, T. J. Bliss, a member of the crew of the U. S. S. Chaumont.

Know What They Wanted.
Pittsburgh—The kids at Homewood School wanted Patrolman Edward Moran and nobody else, so they held a parade to express themselves more forcibly.

More than 100 of them marched through the borough with banners.

"We want out cop back" and "We want Safety-first Moran," and it took a dozen policemen to handle traffic while they paraded.

So far Moran hasn't been returned, however.

Strike's Over.
Conneaut Lake, Pa.—Warm weather probably would have settled this strike anyway, but the ice cutters on Conneaut Lake got what they wanted.

After a two-day walkout the cutting firm granted a boost of from 20 to 40 cents an hour and the sawing went on until the thaw commenced.

Autopsy Failed to Disclose Death Cause

Nothing Definite Found to Indicate Cause of Death of Margaret Hacksteiner Found Dead in Bed in Rooming House on Green Street—Has Been Dead at Least 48 Hours When Body Was Found.

Assistant District Attorney N. L. Van Haver stated this morning that the autopsy performed Tuesday afternoon on the body of Miss Margaret Hacksteiner of Highland, who was found dead in bed in her room at 59 Green street, had disclosed nothing to definitely indicate the cause of death. The body was so badly decomposed when found that it made the work of the autopsy difficult. Dr. Joseph Jacobson and Dr. Kenneth LeFevre performed the autopsy. Dr. Taylor, city pathologist, also assisted.

After the autopsy was performed, Coroner Leston D. DuBois at the request of the young woman's family turned the body over to Undertaker C. B. Carpenter of Highland. Miss Hacksteiner was the daughter of Mrs. K. Hacksteiner, and beside her mother is survived by two brothers, Joseph and John Hacksteiner of Highland, and five sisters, Mrs. Marie Lounsbury of Bermuda, Mrs. Harvey Slate of Highland, Mrs. Eugene Sullivan of Newburgh, Miss Theresa Hacksteiner at home, and Miss Anna Hacksteiner, a nurse at St. Francis Hospital in Poughkeepsie.

Funeral services will be held in St. Augustine's Roman Catholic Church in Highland on Thursday morning at 9:30 o'clock.

Coroner DuBois of New Paltz will render an official verdict as to the probable cause of death when the investigation of the death is completed by the authorities.

The young woman was last seen alive Saturday evening in her room in the rooming house, and authorities believe that death occurred that night. She was a registered nurse and for the past three months had been employed in the dental office of Dr. Feldman, where she had worked until Saturday.

Historic Spots in The Rondout Valley

J. Hartley Tanner of Accord, superintendent of schools for the Third Supervisory District of Ulster county, following a suggestion made by Judge Hasbrouck at the last annual meeting of the Ulster County Historical Society, has prepared a list of places in the Rondout Valley which he deems worthy of being marked as historical spots.

Superintendent Tanner's list, with some introductory remarks regarding "The Historic Rondout Valley," follows:

The State Education Department is interested in marking historic places, and arrangements are being made to give the Rondout Valley due recognition.

The following are points deserving notice:

Places of Historic Interest.

Hurley—Johannes Van Duken House, where Committee of Safety met after the burning of Kingston by the British October 16, 1777. (Has marker.)

Hanging of the Spy, Taylor, in the presence of the Continental Army, October 18, 1777.

Ten Eyck House, where Washington was given a reception November 16, 1782. (Has marker.)

Marbletown—Stone school house, built 1832 and still in use.

Davis Tavern, where public meetings were held before and after the Revolution. (Short distance south of school.)

Andrew Oliver House, where the legislature convened for one month after the burning of Kingston. (Opposite the Davis Tavern, near site of present building.)

Old Cemetery, dating back to 1692. Colonial Church stood in north end. Organized 1737. Building erected 1746. First minister buried beneath the pulpit.

Stone Ridge—First house built by John Beatty. (Location unknown.)

Col. Cornelius Wynkoop House. Here Washington spent the night of November 15, 1782.

Johannes Tack House. Here court convened after the burning of Kingston.

First school, built of logs, was near the Tack House.

Accord—Tom Quick, first settler of record, bought farm of Harmon Hekon, a civilized Indian, situated between the Rondout and Mombaccus creeks. Made sale to another party, September 4, 1676.

The "Dorpt Huys," owned by the Town of Rochester and used for public meetings, was located on the lot occupied at present by the school. It was used later as the town pound. (Place for keeping stray cattle.) (Judge Alton B. Parker was an early principal of this school.)

Rochester Reformed Church, organized 1701. Deed dated 1710. First building was of logs and the present building is the fifth on the same site. (Part of original Tom Quick farm.)

Devo Tavern was an early colonial meeting-place. Silas Bouk, a spy captured by the Indians, was taken to Montreal, but escaped after fourteen months' captivity. He appeared to his neighbors and friends here assembled. (At corner South of Rochester Church. Original walls built into modern house.)

Kerkhonsk—Pine Bush Church, scene of Indian attack, September 5, 1778. (In woods, near road north of cemetery.)

Fort on Deyo's Hill. (Near junction of Pataukunk road with 279.) Indian Valley Inn dates back to early times. For many years known as Schoonmaker's Hotel.

Johannes Hardenburgh House, built 1762. At the burning of Kingston by the British, the State records were brought here for safe keeping. (Just South of Kerkhonsk on Route 279.) (Has marker.)

Wawarsing—Cornelius Deput House, was attacked by Indians August 12, 1781. Garrett Van Wageningen, boy 16 years of age, shot the chief, which prevented further attack. (South side of Route 279 entering Wawarsing village.)

Wawarsing Reformed Church, founded 1745. Destroyed by fire about 1845. Scene of Indian attack August 12 and 13, 1781. Marks of Indian tomahawks on pulpit were left as a memorial of attack. (South of Route 279 near corner of lane to cemetery.)

Cornelius Bevier House was fired by the Indians, but a female slave escaped and put out the flames. (Still standing near entrance to old cemetery.)

Old Stone Fort stood one-fourth mile south of church. Palisaded Indian Fort, on hill east of cemetery, was destroyed. Capt. Martin Kreiger, July 31, 1663, on orders from Governor Peter Stuyvesant, Indian cemetery is on ridge to north.

Indian Longhouse or Council House was at the foot of the bluff near Vernoy's Kill. Also destroyed by Capt. Kreiger.

Napanoch—Abraham Bevier House, Land title September 5, 1765. House built about 1768, and neighborhood fort, but as Bevier had a cannon, it was never attacked by Indians. (Near corner where road from Institution crosses Route 279.)

Egbert DeWitt House, mentioned in records 1734. Daughter, Maria, was the mother of Gov. DeWitt Clinton, who is recorded as having been born here. (Opposite school. Original cellar walls and beams in present building.)

Ellenville—Scene of Fantinekill Massacre May 4, 1779. Eleven persons were murdered by Indians, and the only house in Ellenville was burned. (East of highway entering Ellenville Monument.)

COUNTY FAIR SOCIETIES TO HOLD CONVENTION

On the program arranged for the annual convention of the New York State Association of County Agricultural Fair Societies appear the name of nationally known men recognized for their ability and success in managing fairs. Among the speakers are Milton Danziger, assistant general manager of the Eastern States Exposition; A. W. Lombard, secretary of the Massachusetts Agricultural Fair Association; commissioner of agriculture, C. H. Baldwin, and his successor, Peter TenEyck, also Judge W. H. Golding, secretary of the Cobleskill Fair.

At noon the delegates will meet with Governor Herbert Lehman in the executive chamber. The convention is to be held Tuesday, February 19, in the Ten Eyck Hotel, Albany, N. Y. The delegates represent the 35 Agricultural Fair Societies throughout the state and are looking forward to the meeting to help them improve their fairs by the exchange of ideas in the discussions on the problems that confront them. The arrangements of the dates on which the fairs are to be held will be discussed. The officials of the fairs are preparing for a banner year and are enthusiastically at work to give a greater and better fair for their locality. It is the opinion of the majority of the delegates that the depression will soon be over and a good weather the fair business will soon be back to normal.

The convention will close with the annual dinner. Prominent speakers will be heard. The latest vaudeville acts will be put on by a prominent attraction concern. Officers of the association are: President, Lewis K. Rockefeller, Chatham, N. Y.; secretary, G. W. Harrison, Albany, N. Y.

LEIBHARDT

Leibhardt, Feb. 13.—There will be preaching service at the M. E. Church, Sunday afternoon, February 17, instead of Wednesday evening, which practice has been customary for some time. A good attendance is desired by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Howard of Kerkhonsk.

Benjamin L. Munyan of Krumville spent Sunday with his daughter, Mrs. Chester Quick, and family. Friends of Mrs. Alex Brown are glad to hear she is improving after being ill at her home for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hoff and daughter of Napanoch spent Friday afternoon with her mother, Mrs. J. Hornbeck.

Montena Dewitt of Woodstock spent Saturday evening with his father, Henry S. Dewitt, at "Pine Grove Camp."

The Rev. and Mrs. J. S. Howard and son, Dorin, of Kerkhonsk, were pleasant callers in this community Saturday afternoon.

Miss Kathryn Brown, R. N., who has been at home caring for her mother, Mrs. Alex Brown, for the last three weeks, has returned to Greenwich Hospital, Greenwich, Conn.

Gas Connor of Rochester Center was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Connor and children at dinner Sunday.

Friends in this place were shocked to hear of the sudden death of Mrs. Alfred Van Eiten of Woodstock. She was well liked by all who knew her and will be greatly missed by her many relatives and friends.

Mrs. Ralph Hornbeck spent last Tuesday with her mother, Mrs. Mary J. Gorgevine of Tabasco.

Louis Hoff of Napanoch, on Friday afternoon, called on Leslie Lawrence, who has been ill for some time and does not seem to gain as rapidly as his many friends wish to see him.

Mrs. J. Hornbeck and son, Homer, called on Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wynkoop and son, James, of Tabasco, Monday evening.

Miss Helen Hornbeck is spending a short time with her sister, Mrs. Florence Wynkoop, and sons, Julian and Roy, of Tabasco.

Sharks Found 200 Miles In. Sharks, which usually are 200 miles from the ocean in the waters of Central America.

NEW PALTS

New Paltz, Feb. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Ellinge, Dr. and Mrs. Irving Range and Miss Myrtle Schoonmaker were Wednesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell R. Akins.

Mrs. Henry Poucher spent Tuesday afternoon in Poughkeepsie.

Miss Ethel Addie of Poughkeepsie spent the week-end with Mrs. Ida Stephens on Church street.

Mrs. Tom Jensen entertained Mrs. Harold DuBois, Mrs. Robert Reid, Mrs. Irving Range and Mrs. A. C. Grimm on Thursday evening, the same evening their husbands attended the Rod and Gun Club dinner at Shapples' Hotel.

Mrs. Morgan Coutant has been entertaining Mrs. Morgan Coutant, Jr., and two children of Poughkeepsie for a few days.

The Rev. and Mrs. Robert L. Mauterstock visited in Kingston on Saturday.

Mrs. Irving Range spent Friday and Saturday in New York city with her daughter, Miss Carmen Owens.

James L. House of the Russell R. Akins pharmacy recently spent a few days in Albany while taking the state board examinations for a registered pharmacist. He is a graduate in pharmacy from Albany College, class of 1933.

Miss Ruth M. Havens entertained at dinner at her home last Sunday evening in honor of Miss Mary Deane, who was a week-end guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elliott and Horace Elliott entertained Granville and Earl Kisor at dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Jenkins is spending the winter with her brother.

Mr. and Mrs. George Boettger entertained the Pnochle Club at their home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Coutant and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fisher spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. John E. Vanderlin at Ohlerville.

Miss Elizabeth Brown entertained friends from Cornwall on Sunday afternoon.

Prof. Edgar V. Beebe, head of the Psychology department in the Normal School will be the guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association at the Pleasant Valley School on February 18. His subject will be, "Honesty and Truthfulness Among Children."

William Hasbrouck, who has been taking a course in Floriculture at Cornell University, has returned home.

Reid Parker of Highland, formerly of New Paltz is ill in Nassar Hospital, Poughkeepsie.

Miss Elaine Kniffen and Miss Thelma Deidrick spent the week-end with Miss Helen Smith of the Bronx. While in the city they attended the International Trade Fair at Grand Central Palace and a meeting of the Carmel Fellowship Club. They also visited other places of interest.

Miss Charlotte Tamney, who teaches at Huntington, L. I., spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Tamney.

Jack Hardekopf and sister of Ridgewood, N. J., visited relatives in town on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Abram E. Jansen left last week to motor to Florida where they will spend the remainder of the winter.

Thomas Jenkins and C. K. Taber of Milton attended the meeting of the Kappa Zeta Club in New Paltz Thursday evening.

Ralph Johnson, of New Paltz, district superintendent of schools, and Prof. Emory Jacobs, head of the social science department at the Normal School, were the guest speakers at the regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the John G. Borden High School of Wallkill, held at the home of Mrs. Lester Terwilliger Monday evening.

A valuable and very interesting book has been edited by Dr. J. Wilson Poucher of Poughkeepsie and Byron J. Terwilliger of New Paltz. The book is entitled "Old Grave-stones of Ulster County, New York." The volume contains 22,000 inscriptions collected by the editors in public and private burying grounds in Ulster county, therefore the book is particularly valuable to persons in genealogies of older family names of the county.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ingraham entertained Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wright, Mrs. William DuBois and little daughter, Mrs. Edmund Wager and little son and Elmer Ingraham at dinner on Sunday.

Mr. Mynkens, a theological student from the seminary at New Brunswick, preached in the Ohlerville chapel Sunday, February 10.

Mr. and Mrs. George Doxey of Eltinge avenue, who are spending the winter at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., have written to friends that last Saturday evening winter visitors there from Ulster and Orange counties gathered on the beach for a picnic. Those in the company from New Paltz were: Mr. and Mrs. Jerome LeFevre, Mrs. Cora Lawrence, Jay Lawrence, Mrs. Bowman LeFevre, Miss Sarah Deyo, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Johnston and children, Mrs. Gertrude E. Deyo, Miss Evelyn DuBois, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnston, Mrs. Anne Venetia, Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Lewis, Donata Williams, Frank Williams, Miss Leona LeFevre and Mr. and Mrs. George Doxey. Others in the party were from Modena, Milton, Clintondale, Highland, Bloomington, Kingston, West Hurley, Stone Ridge, Saugerties, Greenwood Lake and Newburgh.

Mrs. Howard Sherwood is spending a few days with her sister in Middletown.

Mrs. Vincent Lyons was pleasantly surprised by a few friends in honor of her birthday on Thursday evening.

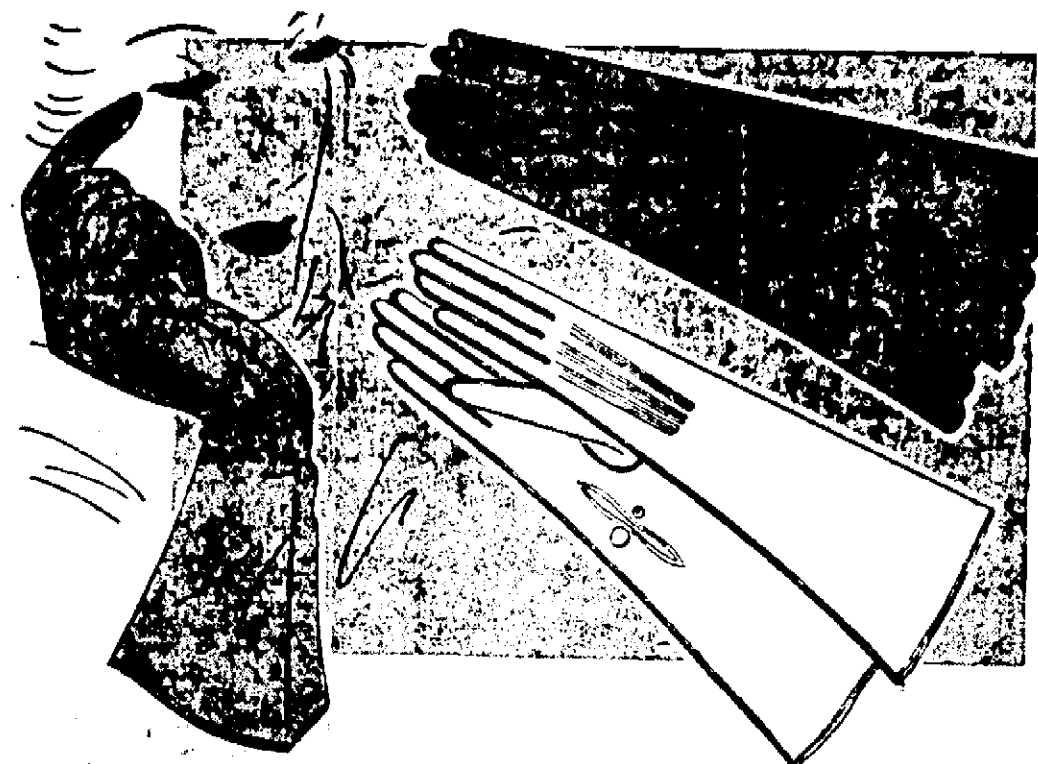

Mrs. Mary F. Dill, who has been very ill, is now able to be up for a while each day.

The Rev. Garrett Wallackinger took for his sermon subject Sunday morning, February 10, at the Reformed Church, "God's Salvation."

The Standard Bowers Society of the Methodist Church will hold a Valentine Day party in the recreation room of the church Thursday evening, February 14.

Mrs. Ira Abrams spent Saturday with her sister, Mrs. David Sutton, in Lioys.

THE PINK PERIL

Reading a report of the "Secret Seven," a mysterious body of elite investigators representing the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce, an outsider must feel his hair rising in horror. The city is on the brink of destruction from the activity of intellectual "pinks." It is found to be infested with reformers championing "the virtuous and just state." The Secret Seven are not much concerned about the proletariat. They fear tremendously the editors, professors, clergymen, economists, social workers, lawyers and judges—"eloquent orators whose impassioned denunciations of our present form of government are not the result of ignorance, but the result of a burning ardor to reform the world." The damning arraignment says:

Are they Communists? Certainly not. They will deny it, and deny it truthfully. Reformers they admit themselves to be, and they subtly convey the impression of their willingness that blood shall be spilled if necessary, their own if it be to hasten the coming of the bright and shining better world that is the reality the day after tomorrow, or just next week or the week after that, if all of us will take away the power of the wicked capitalist and establish the power of the virtuous State—the State whose sole motive shall be social justice.

The deep iniquity of such aspirations, however, will be foiled, the Secret Seven declare. "The great mass of our people realize, either by instinct or by ancestral tradition, that the state is a group of selfish and often unscrupulous politicians, and that the greater its powers are,
 the less liberty its people have."
 It's a terrible situation, just the same. It sounds almost as bad as the old days of Mayor Tom L. Johnson, when there were incessant debates on social justice and civic righteousnesses on every street corner.

HOISTING AND SHORING.

Y. W. C. A. girls in various cities are being straitened up by what a physical director calls the "hoist and shore" tests. Many of them carry their heads thrust forward and have round shoulders and other posture defects. The director explains:

If the young woman were hoisted off her feet by the chin and the base of her skull and then pulled in her chin, you could shore up under her feet and she would be standing as she should. She would then have good chest and spine positions.

The country is full of young women whose bodies were warped by the "debutante slouch" fashionable after the war. Nothing could be done about it then—the girls wouldn't listen to parents or teachers. From their ungainly posture comes a generation with far too many rounded shoulders, narrow chests, crooked spines and drooping heads. Many of them can still be helped, though not all the harm can be undone. Since we're "going Victorian" lately in so many ways, why not in this, too? The Victorians were taught to stand straight, with heads up. For that purpose, possibly walking with a book on the head in grandmother's fashion is as good as hoisting and shoring.

HAWAIIAN AIR BASE

Much as peaceful Americans dislike to expend the nation's military establishment, there is much to be said for the proposal of the general army staff to build a strong air base in Hawaii. The plan is said to complement the spending of $30,000,000 for 500 new armored airplanes, with their necessary complement of flyers, hangars, general equipment and supplies.

The United States would doubtless be planting such a modern air force in the Philippines if we had not decided to let those islands go, as involving us too deeply in Asiatic dangers. In the Philippines, such a move might have been regarded by Asiatic powers as offensive, calling for counter-measures. The Hawaiian islands merely constitute our own first line of continental defense in the Pacific, suggesting the military outposts we used to have on our western plains.

The American public, while probably approving such action, might feel better about it if there were assurances of the national air defense being operated definitely as a third branch of our military system, controlled by practical airmen instead of ground generals and water admirals.

DEBT OF HONOR

The workers in a district office of Chicago's relief commission had a pleasant shock not long ago. A man walked in, slapped $59.94 down on a desk and said he owed it to them.
 It turned out that he had been on relief for a month in 1933. The commission had spent $59.94 to carry him and his family through their desperate four weeks.

Then the man got a job and has been at work pretty steadily ever since. He finally managed to accumulate enough ahead to pay that "debt of honor," as he called it. "It is the honest and American thing to do," he explained, as the office force showed signs of amazement. "Every citizen on relief who gets a job should do the same. It is nothing to my credit. It's just honest, that's all."

Hate off to this honest citizen!
 He makes a reassuring contrast to the chiselers of this world—both on and off relief.

 VITAMINS IN USUAL DIETS

About eight years ago there were three vitamins known to research workers, and today there are eight or more.

With the discovery of these substances came a great wave of enthusiasm regarding their importance in the food stuffs. Today, while their importance is still admitted it is generally agreed "that the adult individual finds a good supply of vitamins in his food so long as that food is varied, has received no artificial or accidental separation into parts and has had no destructive influence applied to it."

As you know, vitamins were never even suspected until it was found manufacturers in attempting to make certain foods more attractive, appez-ing, and more easily prepared for cooking, had removed certain valuable substances from these foods.
 It was because these substances (vitamins) were removed in the manufacturing process that certain aliments—scurvy, wasting diseases, eye diseases—occurred. By using these same foods in their natural state the ailments were cured.

However, it would seem that the pendulum has swung almost too far toward the need for "extra" vitamins to put in the various foods—milk, bread and others.

It is admitted that children may need some extra vitamins such as vitamins A and D for growth and bone building. That is why spinach and cod liver oil are so often added to children's diet.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Feb. 13, 1915.—Miss Cecilia Mc-Grath and Arthur Perry Lee married.
 William Withers died at Glenco.
 Edward Schriener, formerly of this city, badly hurt with several others when the roof of Memorial Hall at Pine Plains caved in.
 Phineas Rice Finger died at his home on Liberty street.

Feb. 12, 1925.—Mrs. John Purdee died at Connelly.

Stanley Matthews, chairman of the building committee, reported plans ready for construction of American Legion Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street, and that work would be started as soon as conditions would permit.

Past Commander Thomas Coughlin of the American Legion installed George Potter as commander of Kingston Post.

Thomas A. Skeltes of Saugerties died.

Mrs. Margaret Longendyke Van Brumer, wife of William Van Brumer, Jr., died at Woodstock.

Heavy Vessels Go to Bottom

Heavy vessels such as modern battles are so much heavier than water that they will sink to the sea bottom.
 It might be possible for a wooden vessel, carrying a cargo of light density like cork, to which no more than water after being with water. Such a vessel would be like a waterlogged piece of wood which sinks to a certain depth but not to the bottom. Sea water weighs about 64 pounds to the cubic foot of the surface and a little more at the bottom part of the ocean. Practically all modern ships, when filled with water and even including entirely all the cargo, will sink to the bottom. The bottom. Detroit News.

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: Montone has taken half of the emerald crown of Our day to give it to the bishop from whose church it had been stolen by General Rubia. But the other half is with Mateo Rubia, and Mateo has been captured by Estrada and tortured, and is about to be sent to the Valley of the Dead. Montone does not know the whereabouts of Rubia, but he does know that he must learn them.

Chapter 29
THE BLESSING

MONTANA knew the way—Brother Pascual had told him—so he turned right in at the open door of the Bishop's room and found that good little man at the window.

When the Bishop heard Montana's light laugh behind him, he turned a face.

"Hush," he said. "Why are you here?"

"I've come to ask you where I can find a friend of mine, and to give you a little token you've been missing."

"A token?" asked the bishop.
 As the youth came closer to him,
 Bishop Emiliano lifted his gleaming bald head higher and higher until he was staring up into the masked face.

"I beg your pardon," said the Kid.
 "Of course I know that there's no harm can come from you." He took off his mask.

"But who are you, my son?" said the bishop.

"Perhaps you'll find my name engraved somewhere on this," said Montana.

And he put the trinket in the chamois wrapping into the hands of the bishop. The latter, unwrapping the thing slowly, still kept his grave, gentle eyes fixed on the stranger until something that his fingers touched made him look down quickly.

Then he saw that sacred glimmer of gold and green and he clasped the treasure in both hands against his breast.

"You are El Keel!" he said. "Ah, where is Pascual! He knew that you would come back and bring this. He was sure of it. He gave me his oath that there was no evil in you, my son."

"Oh, there's trouble enough in me!" said the Kid.

"What shall I do for you?" asked the bishop, making a helpless gesture. "How shall I make you a reward? You are not of our faith, my son?"

"No," said the Kid. "Never mind about the rewards. Give them to Rubia. Give them to Mateo. A few Aves will make him feel richer than a king."

Then he saw something in the face of the priest and went a bit closer to him.

"There's one thing that I could use," he said. "It's never happened to me before, and perhaps it might as well happen now. Give me your blessing, if you will."

He knelt down suddenly. The good bishop was taken aback for an instant, and he peered down at the Kid as though he suspected, for a moment, that there might be a bit of sacrilegious mockery in his gesture, but the strong, clean features of the Kid were no longer smiling.

At that, Bishop Emiliano put both hands on the head of Montana.

"Our Father in Heaven," he said,
 "give faith and love to this young son, we pray you."

"Is that all?" asked Montana.

"If you will wait there a little longer, I'll kneel and pray with you, my dear lad," said the bishop.

"No," answered the Kid, rising.
 "The floor's hard and my knees are soft. Where shall I kneel?"

"Somewhere along the street," said the bishop, a supposition.
 "His heart is not half a step away from the heart of a child. Perhaps that is why he is such a foolish man and such a good one."

"Tell me about him," begged Montana. "There's a fellow I want to know more about."

BUT just then he heard, out of the singing and the laughing and the shouting and the aimless chattering of the crowd in the street, the voice of one girl singing above the rest.

The sweetness of it ran into his soul even before his mind understood the meaning of the words.

She was singing:

"Love is not happiness.
 Love is a long, long, long,
 A word under hands,
 And red wine for the belly,
 But love is not happiness."

At that, he only paused to pull the mask again over his face before he leaned from the window of the bishop's palace and sent his voice:

Yamereau, Montana turns the Politics at Random

By BYRON PRICE (Chief of Bureau, The Associated Press, Washington)

FROM surface indications, at least, it appears that the politicians have been getting the best of it in their rivalry with the brain-trusters at Washington.

The college professors and the young liberal lawyers not only are becoming scarier, but those remaining are far less vocal in public.

Less legislation is going into Capitol Hill bearing the stamp of the brain trust on the outside of the package. When big fellows get together on any specific problem, the assembled company is likely to include fewer professors, more politicians.

Of course these outward appearances may not be conclusive. Ray Moley, original dean of the administration faculty, continues to slip in and out of the White House with great frequency. Many of his old colleagues remain scattered here and there through the government service.

It is hard to tell whether the braintrusters really are dying out, or merely ducking.

Where is Dr. Hutchins?
 SO FAR anyone is able to see, Mr.
 Roosevelt is talking money and fiscal problems now with bankers and business men whom he brought to important posts more or less recently. The economists who, in the role of experts, advised the President to manipulate the dollar, are seldom heard of today.

It remains an impenetrable secret of what, if anything, was done with Dr. Hutchins, the eminent president of Chicago university, whose supposed summons to responsibility in Washington stirred up so much publicity a few months ago. So far as the eye could discern he never was put to work at all.

Just what will be left for Harry Hopkins to do when the present relief appropriations are exhausted is causing much capital speculation.

Richberg Survives—But—THERE remains one really vocal survivor of the original band of devotees to "the new economics," but just now his eligibility is very much under debate within the camp.

His name is Donald Richberg. He made his reputation as a lawyer for labor unions and two years ago was looked upon by many big business interests as a dangerous radical.

He has advanced in the favor of the White House faster and further than any other brain-truster. Along the way he has broken with organized labor, however, made friends with many of the conservatives, and acquired a reputation for orthodox thinking that few would have believed possible.

It would be easy from the outward evidence alone to conclude that the brain-trust, as originally set up, has vanished. But conclusions like that about the present administration never are safe. The pendulum might swing the other way tomorrow.

Frank's Departure
 IN SOME quarters the departure of Jerome Frank, whose economic ideas had been berated so often by some of the old-liners, caused almost as much commotion as did the earlier exit of Moley himself.

Frank had been credited with having a great deal to do with the writing down in the second verse of that old Spanish song:

"Love is not happiness.
 Love is a long, long, long,
 A word under hands,
 But love is not happiness."

"My son, is it proper that love songs should come out of the window of a clergyman?" said the bishop. But he was laughing till he remembered another thing: "And the whole town filled with Rubia and soldiers ready to seize you, El Keel! But I'll show you a back stairs to take you out behind the house."

"With such a new blessing, how could I come into old trouble?" asked Montana. "Besides, she's answering me—she's waiting there in the street for me—that beautiful, laughing, singing, dancing devil, that traitor, Rubia."

He was feeling from the room as he spoke. The bishop heard the feet thump hardy three times on the stairs, and then he saw the bounding figure issue out into the crowd.

The bishop also saw the carriage of General Estrada, drawn by four horses, plowing through the crowd, which scattered rapidly back on either hand, because on the back of the rear leader of the team there rode a cruel devil with a black-snake, and he knew exactly how to stop people out of his way.

Lolling back in the carriage was the general himself, leaning one hand on the bill of a great, gilded sword and smoking one of his big cigars. Passing the palace of the bishop, he stood up, enormous in his carriage, spreading his feet to keep his balance against the jolting, and slowly, deliberately saluted.

THE bishop, shocked by that insolence, drew back from the window a little and raised his eyes to that stately hearse which permits so many monsters to stalk the earth in triumph.

Then he took out of his pouch at his girdle a folded paper which he opened and read by the dim flicker of the candles easily and swiftly, because it was a document which he had scanned more than once before.

It announced in great letters, at the top, a reward of ten thousand pesos for the apprehension of a man, dead or alive!

Ten thousand pesos—in this country where a thousand would seem a great fortune to many a starved, lean, dangerous mountaineer—men who shot straight because they could not afford to waste ammunition!

An American who speaks like a native Mexican.
 He has darkened his skin with a stain.
 He has black hair, but his eyes are blue.
 He is tall, with wide shoulders.
 His ways are graceful, his movements are slow.
 He seldom wears a hat.
 He will come to a pretty woman
 as a wild horse comes to water.
 Look for tall handsome men with blue eyes.

Ten thousand pesos reward.
 El Keel—dead or alive—El Keel.

That was the last line of the poster, in the largest lettering of all.

The bishop dropped the paper to the floor and leaned from his window again, breathless. He should have told the gringo about that published notice. But why should he tell such news to a man who surely knew all about what was happening?

And now he was down there in the crowd! And if he, with dim eyes and from a distance, could distinguish the prey in the throng, why did not those about him know the man instantly?

Because the eyes of the bishop had been opened, and the eyes of the crowd were closed by the brass darning of the American. The last thing the men of Duray expected was to find El Keel among them so soon after the foray upon the fort.

The carriage of the governor stopped. The governor himself stepped down. He approached a girl who was singing with a guitar. That was the daughter of the one-legged Miguel Santos.

There stood the governor, holding out a hand to her, gesturing towards his carriage.

Hot anger stood up in the heart of the bishop, and then he saw that the girl was refusing. She was shaking her head. She was still singing her song.

The governor, turning suddenly, strode back into his carriage and swung himself back into his former seat, and all the crowd thronged about him and cheered his departure.

The bishop was angry. He could not believe the thing that he had seen. The girl of the inn had refused the governor.

DECISIONS THAT MADE HISTORY

2. Development of Corporations Traced to Ruling in Dartmouth Case

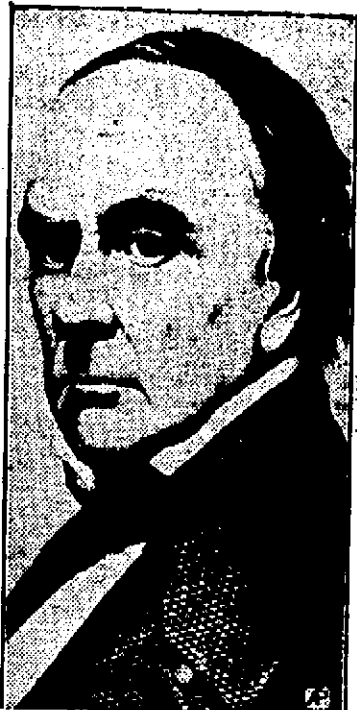

This is the second in a series of daily articles discussing famous rulings by the supreme court of the United States.

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
Washington (AP)—The Supreme Court of the United States, which in 1803 established its authority to determine the constitutionality of legislation, made its second big history-making decision in 1819.

Its ruling in the celebrated Dartmouth college case is said to have provided the legal groundwork for the tremendous development and expansion of corporations on the American business scene. Chief Justice Marshall, delivering as usual the court's opinion, held that corporate charters and franchises were contracts entailing vested property rights which were not subject to repeal.

Webster Plays a Role

The New Hampshire legislature had enacted measures amending the charter granted to Dartmouth college, increasing the number of college trustees and creating a board of overseers for veto power. Old trustees of the college, who opposed the legislature's acts, sought to have them set aside on the grounds that they were contrary to general principles of government and violated the particular clause of the federal constitution forbidding legislation which impaired contracts. The highest New Hampshire court sustained the acts of the legislature and the

In the Dartmouth college case, Daniel Webster argued that the integrity of contracts should be preserved. In one of its most famous decisions, the supreme court upheld his contentions, thus helping provide the legal groundwork for the expansion of corporations. The case was carried to the Supreme Court.

Daniel Webster, himself a graduate of Dartmouth, made one of his powerful pleas to preserve the integrity of contracts and to save college and the rights to private individuals from what he termed disaster if the action of the state were upheld.

The significance of the court decision, which in upholding the college stressed the inviolability of contract rights, was not realized at the time but it later was recognized as one of the most momentous.

Federal Bank Upheld

Another highly significant decision was made that year by the Supreme Court in the case of McCulloch versus Maryland. McCulloch, cashier of the Maryland branch of the Bank of the United States, a federal institution, brought suit to determine the right of the state of Maryland to tax the bank.

Chief Justice Marshall, giving the opinion of the court, held that since the power to tax involved the power to destroy, the bank as a federal institution could not be taxed by a state. But the important part of the opinion was the ruling that the government had the power to establish such a bank, thus smoothing the way for expansion of the federal power.

The bank, "being a convenient, useful and essential instrument in the prosecution of the government's fiscal operations" was adjudged to be within the limits of the constitution.

Local Y.W.C.A. Chooses Officers

The Board of Directors of the local Y. W. C. A. met at the association building on Monday evening, at which time the officers for the year were elected.

Mrs. George F. Rice, who has so ably served as president of the association for 11 years, and whose illness at present makes it impossible for her to take active responsibility, was unanimously made honorary president of the association for this year. The slate of officers elected was as follows: President, Mrs. G. N. Wood; vice president, Mrs. Frederic Holcomb; recording secretary, Miss Beatrice Powley; corresponding secretary, Miss Emily D. Hoyerstadt; treasurer, Mrs. John W. Matthews.

The board of directors is composed of 24 members, nine of whose terms expired in January. The following were elected at the annual meeting to serve for three years: Mrs. Leonard Flicker, Mrs. M. Donald Lane, Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, Miss Katherine Millard, Miss Beatrice Powley, Mrs. George F. Rice, Mrs. Raymond Rignall, Mrs. Arthur Wicks, Mrs. Charles Arnold.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER STURGES, Jr.

Albany, Feb. 13 (Special)—All morning yesterday—it was Lincoln's birthday anniversary—the state Senate lay in darkness. Covering one of the 50-odd desks in the chamber was black crepe cloth. And in Brooklyn nearly every senator and many assemblymen attended the funeral of one of this state's finest senators whose death occurred last Friday. Henry L. O'Brien was gone. But his memory lingers in the halls of the Capitol Building, and the splendid tributes that were paid him last night certainly bore this out. He was a member of the Democratic party, but men who were his friends rose from either side of the aisle to pay a last verbal tribute to their constituent. Some of the staunchest of the state's leaders in the upper chamber could not hide an unexpressed tear. Then when the formality of a rising vote was taken it was as if a magical wand had touched the senators as they rose to a man to unanimously adopt the resolution of respect for their late associate.

Budget and tax program bills dwarfed all other legislation in both chambers last night as advancement to third and final reading took place. Not a single Democrat showed himself as an insurgent, and with perfect clicking the political steamroller marched on and crushed and hushed the pleas and cries that Republicans made. The entire program went through its initial test by a strict party vote in each instance: The Senate, 28-18, and the Assembly, 76-69. The night, which marked the lower house convening at 8:30 and the upper one at 9, was the longest yet held this session, lasting until after midnight.

Republicans, led by that veteran George R. Fearon in the Senate and the new party leader, Irving M. Ives, in the Assembly, went on record as opposing the tax and budget bills principally because no public hearing was granted on any of the measures, and because there have been demands estimated between $0,000 and $100,000 for such a hearing. Retorted Democratic John T. Dunnigan, majority leader of the upper chamber, "That is a lame excuse. During the years of Republican control no public hearing was ever granted." Fearon accused the majority party of the attitude of "The Public be damned!" Senator Jeremiah Twomey, chairman of the powerful finance committee, declared that his party would balance the budget and that was what they were there for. The Republican party in the Senate again took exception to the confirmation of Peter G. TenEyck as commissioner of agriculture and markets. Reiterating an announcement made last week, Senator Fearon did not question the personal qualifications of the governor's choice, but openly questioned the validity, under the present law, of such an appointment, and this time went on record as not voting at all.

By request, Senator Arthur H. Wicks, of Kingston, was to have introduced last night an entirely new tax and revenue program. Charles J. Tobin, of Albany, who is tax attorney in this city, made the request and is its sponsor. Senator Wicks, however, having just returned from New York where he attended the funeral of the late Senator Henry L. O'Brien, would not submit the gigantic report without an opportunity to first examine it, but may later introduce it under his name. Outstanding among its provisions is the imposition of an approximate 2 per cent sales tax, and includes the present income and inheritance tax rates. Of momentary notice is that it retains the three-cent gasoline tax which has been the hottest spot on the executive budget program this year.

Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, also of Kingston and representing Ulster county in the Lower House, has expressed himself as definitely against the tax bills in their present form. He advocates the "ability to pay" procedure in levying of revenues, and does not believe that this has been adequately distributed in the current recommendations. On the gas tax especially he is opposed, and on the realization that some 40 to 60 dollars each year are paid the state by average motorists to whom cars are a utility rather than a luxury he has signified his disapproval by voting against each and all of these measures.

The Strawberry
Prior to 1840 the strawberry was not considered a commercial crop in the United States; it was classified as a wild fruit.

Rose and Gorman Has New Frigidaire at Show

Nineteen thirty-five models of Frigidaire now on its fourth million were shown today for the first time in the Municipal Auditorium by Rose & Gorman, dealer here for the products of this unit of General Motors.

Sensationally new in design, carrying all the efficiency features required for household food protection and preservation and priced for every purse and purpose, the line consists of sixteen models in four series, all featuring the famous Frigidaire super freezer, which, according to V. A. Gorman, is a remarkable contribution to economical home refrigeration.

"The super freezer, principal feature of an electric refrigerator that has everything," Mr. Gorman said, "provides the cold necessary to properly preserve food, to freeze ice cubes and desserts."

Traffic Survey To Start Here Friday

Commences at Midnight and Continues Until Monday at Midnight at Three Master Stations—Start Work on Foundation for City Laboratory on Friday.

The winter traffic survey, a work relief project, commences Friday at midnight and will continue until Monday at midnight at the three master stations, while at the other stations the men making the survey will work for a 24-hour stretch only. This survey will employ the services of 18 men. Last summer a traffic survey was made and it was decided to hold a winter survey here so that the figures could be compared.

The excavating work for the new city laboratory to be erected as a work relief project on the Kingston Hospital grounds has been completed. The foundation is to be of concrete and the work of building the forms will commence on Friday. The land on which the laboratory will stand has been decided to the city by the hospital.

Work is progressing on the book binding project and 11 men and women are employed re-binding the school books in the city schools. A workshop has been set up in one of the rooms at School No. 2.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, Feb. 13.—Harry May, who attends college in New York city, spent the week-end with his parents here.

Mr. and Mosely Hoffman and son, George, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. John Van Wagoner of Lomontville.

Bert Van Demark, who has been very ill with pneumonia and German measles at the Benedictine Hospital, is improving at this writing.

Miss Ethel Wheeler was a caller at Locust Hurst Cottage on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Milford Coan, who has been ill with grip for the last week, is improving under the care of Dr. Galvin.

Miss Betty DuMont graduated from Kingston High School this semester and left Wednesday for New York city, where she will take a beauty culture course.

Mrs. J. M. Barnhart is visiting her daughter, Mrs. C. L. Leffer, Jr., of Bloomingtown.

There are several little lambs on the Ayers farm.

Mrs. Thorton Church was a guest of Mrs. Quirk of Shokan over Saturday night. On Sunday they motored to Delhi, where they called on her nephew, Lee Krom, who is attending school there, and also visited friends in the vicinity.

Democratic Meeting
The regular monthly meeting of the Franklin D. Roosevelt United Democratic Club will be held Thursday at the White Table Hall at 8 p. m. Every member is requested to be present.

Orange Wood Tough
Orange wood is so tough and durable that it is used for making golfers' clubs. Originally the American Indians used it for their bows and arrows.

In County Granges

Mr. Tremper Grange

The card party the Grange held on Friday, February 8, was a very enjoyable occasion, when folk from Shokan, Wittenberg, Chichester, Lanesville, Mt. Pleasant and Mt. Tremper were present. Pinochle and euchre were played. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served during the evening.

On Monday the Grange pancake supper was served to a large gathering. Following this delicious meal, the rest of the evening was spent in playing cards and other social pastimes. The next Grange meeting will take place on Friday, February 15, at 8 p. m.

Plattekill Grange

A regular meeting of Plattekill Grange was held in the Grange hall on Saturday evening, February 9. Announcement was made by Albert Langlitz that a program of varied entertainment will be presented at the Grange hall on the evening of Friday, February 15, at 8 p. m. A moderate charge will be made, the proceeds to be used to purchase an electric victrola to furnish music for dancing after Grange meetings. The program features several of the youthful pupils of Ruth VanKuren's school of dancing, also a trio of young ladies. An added attraction is a comedy entitled "Ye Deestrick Skule," to be given by Grange members.

The Grange will enter the "Grange Membership—Boilermakers Cereal Contest." In connection with this contest a pancake supper will be served at the Grange hall on Tuesday evening, March 5. The service and hospitality committee will sponsor a card party following the supper.

Mrs. Edgar Kaup announced for the service and hospitality committee that $10.15 was cleared from the very enjoyable card party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Newkirk on Tuesday evening, February 5. Mrs. Kaup also announced that $8.50 has been realized from the food sale held at the Grange hall.

Saturday evening, January 12. The service and hospitality committee will sponsor a traveling food basket. This basket will visit the homes of Grange members. In it will be found articles of food. The person whom the basket visits is asked to take one article of food from the basket and put in 25 cents and also another article of food. Thus the basket will travel from family to family among Grange members.

The annual oyster supper will be held in the Grange hall on Thursday evening, February 28. The following committee will be in charge: George Slatte, chairman, Nelson Hedges, Ruffie Ward, William Nabors, Samuel Dransfield, Orson Hedges, Eugene Stevens, Sylvester Reed, Arthur Foster, Eldred Smith, Clarence Hoffman. Roast beef will be served for those who do not care for oysters. Modern and old-fashioned dancing will follow the supper.

At the next meeting the following people will review books: "England Beautiful," Mrs. Ruffie Ward; "Wild Bird Guests," Rita Silberling; "Devices in the Home," Albert Langlitz.

During the lecturer's hour the following program was presented: Opening song, "Love's Old Sweet Song," by the Grange; recitation, "A Greeting," by Shirley Weaver; reading, "Origin of Valentine's Day," Anna Leetch; piano solo, "All I Want Is a Cottage, Some Roses, and You," Mrs. Edmund Wager; a series of tableaux accompanied by songs, entitled, "Love Immortal"; "What Your Future Reveals," by a fortune teller; Valentine songs by the Grange. Much credit is due Marion Wheeler for the splendid program of which she was chairman. Miss Presler was assisted by Rose Langwitz, Herman Cook, Albert Langwitz, George Martin and other young members of the Grange.

Delicious refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. George Slatte, Albert Slatte, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brach, Mrs. William Leetch, Anna Leetch, Mr. and Mrs. James Leetch, Alton Brach, Mrs. George Decker, Mrs. Ola Weaver, Mrs. Carrie Baxter, Mrs. Carrie Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Scott and Ellis Shaner.

Parent-Teacher Associations

Mr. Tremper P.-T. A.

The February meeting of the local unit was held at the school house on Saturday evening, February 9. Interesting problems were discussed concerning the services of a visiting nurse. The secretary read correspondence from the state department of education. P.-T. A. district director, and chairman of the Founder's Day fund. After the meeting the evening was spent in a social manner, when refreshments were served. The March meeting will be on the ninth day of the month.

Card Party

The High School P.-T. A. will hold a card party at Randall's store on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Bridge and pinochle will be played.

ST. REMY.

St. Remy, Feb. 13.—The services last Sunday were well attended. The Rev. Mr. Moncada gave a very interesting talk of his mission work in different places, which was much appreciated. The Rev. Philip Goertz will preach next Sunday at the usual hour of service, 2:30 p. m. Everyone is invited to come and will be welcome.

St. Remy was represented at the Father and Son night held at the Municipal Auditorium at Kingston Friday night. Those who had no one of their own borrowed one for the occasion.

The friendly social will be held on Thursday, February 21, in the Sunday School room at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Vincent Havlin is visiting friends in New York city.

Hawley Krom was in New York city and Brooklyn last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Carman of Elmira are guests of Mrs. M. F. Haines.

ALLIGERVILLE

Alligerville, Feb. 13.—A very pleasant afternoon was spent by the members of the Ladies' Aid last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Jansen in Kyrleike.

It was decided, upon an invitation from Mrs. Howard, to have the next community social on February 22 at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Frizzle Adams are the parents of a little daughter, Florence Anna, born February 6 at the Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Wasson Steen returned Friday from Florida where they had been vacationing for three weeks. They enjoyed the trip.

Mrs. Earle Battelle returned Sunday after spending a week in New York and vicinity.

There was a large representation of the Sunday school at the Round Valley Sunday school convention held in the Accord Church last Friday evening. The local school won the banner again at this convention.

The Sunday school will hold its monthly social Friday evening, February 15, at the church hall. All young people of the community are invited.

Pattern No. 1591-B

Silk-Print Frock in a Preferred Style

No spring wardrobe is quite complete without its share of semi-dressy occasional frocks for in-between use.

The immortal butterfly-bow is the dominating note in the printed-crepe dress shown in the sketch. It illustrates the simple and direct way we achieve chic in our new print frocks. The papillone neckline is to the silk dress what the rever is to the spring jacket-frock. Both are apt to be gigantically proportioned to give a broadened bodice-line above a slim skirt of youthful character.

Variations in silhouette are noticeable in the new clothes. Widened hemlines hint at the return of the bell skirt. Deep armholes sustain interest in dolman sleeves. Back and front seamings are outstanding. These new details appear advantageously in this smart design.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1591-B is designed in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 40 and 42. Corresponding bust measures 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42.

Tomorrow: Practical dress for mature figures.

The Family Budget
Of Interest to All

In these times everyone watches the family budget; even father takes an interest in the amount of money spent for food.

When the allowance for food is small, it is necessary to make every penny count in food value. How this may be done most effectively was explained lately by Commissioner of Agriculture Charles H. Baldwin, in a statement issued through the Consumers' Information Service of the Department of Agriculture and Markets. If there is more money, certain foods may be included to add variety and to increase the protective qualities of the diet, says the commissioner. For instance, fresh fruit each day and eggs more frequently during the week, could be added.

Include "Protective Foods." If the food fund is still more liberal, more butter may be used, more salads of raw fruits, vegetables, more meat and a greater variety of it.

The diet each day should include the protective foods: milk, a quart each day for every child and a pint for every adult; vegetables of green or yellow color and fruits, fresh fruits or tomato juice. Other good foods are cereal foods and potatoes, molasses, sugar and dried fruit; lean meat, eggs, fish, dried beans or cheese, butter and other fats.

When shortage of money forces the expenditure for food to an abnormally low level, the proportion spent for milk should be increased. Sherman and Gillett point out that at a comfortable income level, one-fifth (20 per cent) of the food fund may be spent for milk, but when the income is below the comfort level, if nutritional needs are met, it is necessary to use as much as one-third of the food money for milk.

Real Low-Cost Diets.

Actual experience with low-cost diets, in recent months, has shown that families benefit from diets when even more than one-third of the total food fund is spent for milk and its products. Families of five have been provided with adequate diets containing fourteen quarts of fluid milk weekly for drinking purposes and the equivalent of fourteen additional quarts in the form of milk products which have provided the same diet.

A pamphlet, "Spending Less for Healthful Foods," will be mailed upon request to the Consumers' Information Service, Department of Agriculture and Markets, Albany, New York.

OLIVE BRIDGE.

Olive Bridge, Feb. 12.—The Sunday preaching service and Sunday School was very well attended and it is hoped that still more interest will be shown.

The Ladies Aid Society meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Bishop. There were 21 members present and several visitors. After the usual business meeting, a very pleasant social hour was enjoyed during which the ladies served refreshments. The society will meet with Mrs. Virgil Gordon in March.

Several high school pupils and their parents are planning to attend the roller play to be given at the high school this week.

The 4-H Club of Olive Bridge is looking forward to a large crowd and a good time on Thursday night of this week, when a box social will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Davis.

The new tailored negligees "exploit" richness of fabric.

Liane Merwin

Many of the latest spring negligees and robes of tea-gown variety follow tailored lines with little collar or self tie necklines, sleeves and closing details that give them a dress appearance.

The richness of fabrics is dependent upon to a considerable extent for smartness in the tailored styles which are classic in design and distinctly different from the negligees of satin and lace—another type much favored for spring and summer wear.

The robe sketched on the standing figure is done in tea rose silk plissé—it has three-quarter sleeves and a high self tie neckline and a dress-like closing which fastens with a button on the left shoulder. The tie-sash at the waistline is of the same material.

The seated figure wears a lace-trimmed night gown of crepe done in softer theme, with square shoulder trimming details of net edged with tinted alençon lace. This model subscribes to a slightly bloused and high-waisted silhouette and fastens at the side with a self tie. It features a square neckline at both front and back. The hem is also edged with a deep band of tinted alençon lace.

UNCLE SAM CONSIDERS 'SOCIAL SECURITY'

2. Jobless Insurance Measures, Differing Widely, Flood State Legislatures

This is the second in a daily series of four daily articles.

By DON JOSEPH.

(Associated Press Staff Writer.)
There are 45 bills on unemployment insurance pending in state legislatures. Twenty legislatures have addressed resolutions to congress on this subject, and congress has before it 10 such bills. One state legislature, Wisconsin, has passed an unemployment insurance bill.

Sociologists are stating that this will be America's historic year in social legislation, as was 1911 in England.

The Wagner-Lewis bill, the administration-supported social security measure now before congress, requires state cooperation with the federal government. Which of the state measures will be found adequate will depend on the limitations fixed by federal authorities should the Wagner-Lewis bill pass.

Reserves Set Up.

Eighteen of these pending state bills contain provisions for the reserve system of handling unemployment insurance funds. Wisconsin's law also contains this feature, although there are variations in the bills proposed in the other states. That of Wisconsin is considered fairly representative.

Under the Wisconsin system, individual plant reserves are required, into which each employer contributes no more than 2 per cent of his payroll. As this reserve fund increases, the contributions of the employer are allowed to decrease. The theory is that the employer will try to keep contributions at a minimum by restricting discharge of employees.

The other method of obtaining and controlling the funds may be found in the so-called Ohio plan, a proposed measure in which employers are to pay 2 per cent of their payrolls and workers 1 per cent, all going into a state pool from which the unemployed would be paid. Twenty-seven Precipitated by pending measures in congress calling for cooperation of the states on the social security program, the state lawmakers have started consideration of a writer of unemployment insurance legislation, while Mr. Working Man, employed or unemployed, looks on.

Restrictions Established.
In the matter of those to be covered under the plans, two general types of legislation are under consideration. The one plan, as established in the Wisconsin act, protects industrial workers only, as has been proposed in the plans of Minnesota weeks of employment would be a probation period and would permit the employer to lay off an employee as incompetent within six months after he was employed, depriving him of his insurance.

For the workman of Wisconsin to obtain funds, once he is unemployed, he must have lived in the state for the two preceding years, or have worked there for 40 weeks.

There are almost as many provisions for waiting periods as there are state plans. Each one provides for a different period between the time a man loses his job and the time he receives the benefits of insurance. In the Wisconsin act, only two weeks are requisite. Plans projected in Minnesota envision a delay of 8 weeks.

Payments Provided.
As for the length of time an unemployed person would receive his funds, most of the plans offer benefits in ratio to the length of time contributions are paid into the reserves or pools, one week of benefits to four of employment being favored.

One of the longest time provisions is that of the bill in Minnesota, where it is specified that payments are not to run over 40 weeks, whereas in the Massachusetts bill and in the Wisconsin law the limit is set at 10 weeks.

In general, the payments proposed under the different plans are limited to between $10 and $15 a week, or to 50 per cent of the average weekly salary of the worker. Only in the New York Byrne bill, one of the proposed measures, was a limit of 75 per cent of the wages planned.

SIGHTS & SOUNDS

BROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—Constance Collier, since the preview of "Shadow of Doubt," has taken a big place in the circle of Hollywood's character stars.

The English actress is no stranger to Hollywood, although this was her first talking picture film here. Back in 1915 she was here in David Wark Griffith's silent play, when Hollywood was "little more than a street."

Another time she was here as an official adviser on "The Taming of the Shrew" for Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, and then there was the time she was stagedirecting Ida May Phelps in the play "Rebound" before the outbreak of the latter flits, however. Did Hollywood suggest that she be an actress in pictures?

Signed In Paris

Her contract came in Paris, indirectly the result of a conversation

He had by chance with George Douglas, the clairvoyant. Miss Collier did not know then and still doesn't know whether she believes in such things, but Gene stopped at her table in a small restaurant and casually pointed out that the Constance Collier was going to sign a M-G-M contract. Louis B. Mayer of the studio was in Paris at the time, and Gene suggested a note to him. Mr. Mayer got the note, and George Cukor, abroad for "David Copperfield" at the time, personally directed her in tests.

Whether it was the Dennis prediction or the more relevant fact that Constance Collier's reputation was built on her life in the theater, much of it as a stage actress, brought her to Hollywood. As the screen eccentric recluse in "Shadow of Doubt" she makes it rather clear that she will stay for some time. Her performance was highly lauded. As for herself, she likes Hollywood and considers it "truly cosmopolitan."

Preview 'Thrill'

She got a thrill at the preview, walking into the theater unrecognized by fans outside, then coming out afterwards and having them leap to her, congratulate her, "just if they'd known me a long time ago, we were old friends."

The thrill was comparable, she says, to the first time she ever heard an audience call her name in the theater—"an experience one can have only once," she says.

In Hollywood she has two dreads. One is that the reporter that she is to take Marie Dressler roles "will taken seriously. She thinks no press can take another's place, and tainly not the place of one so adored as Marie Dressler."

The other fear is that new acquaintances will think her rude when they meet her the second time. "I'm near-sighted, and cannot recognize people even though they are most face to face."

plain Methods of Propagating Trees

meva; N. Y., Feb. 13.—"Plant propagation" is the title of Circular 1338 from the State Experiment Station here prepared by Dr. H. B. Tukey who is in charge of the Station with rootstocks and fruit propagation. The circular treats of various methods employed in propagating fruits and ornamentals, such as deciduous and evergreens, and a copy may be obtained upon request to the station.

Plants may be propagated in numerous ways," says Dr. Tukey, "the method depending upon the material at one's disposal, the facilities available, and the results desired."

With some plants, such as shade trees, propagation from seed may be satisfactory. On the other hand, many horticultural plants do not come true from seed and may be increased by other and more satisfactory methods, such as by rooting of some portion or by cuttings of the mother plant. Others are easily increased by suckers or runners, and by rooting tips. Some plants difficult to propagate by other methods may sometimes be increased by root to root by layering.

Plants, with material which does not propagate readily by any of these methods, it may be necessary to use grafting or already established plants as bud or graft onto it the desired individual. Also, in altering the form of a growing plant or in repairing injury, grafting and budding are used to advantage.

The circular, Dr. Tukey discusses the practical application of these various methods of propagation, particularly with regard to fruits. In addition is also included on the propagation of roses and evergreens and other ornamentals. The various methods in grafting, budding, layering, etc., are well illustrated.

PREVIEWED
Today
Broadway: "Romance in Manhattan". Warmth and beauty run the length of this play, a flawless, tingling film that has all the requirements for that unusual thing known his perfection. A simple story enriched with superlative acting, a director with genius and understanding, both combine to give audience two hours of screen wizardry. The story tells of an immigrant boy who comes to America illegally, and who gets a job selling papers through a smaller boy who becomes his friend. The smaller boy has a sister, and the sister and the immigrant boy fall in love but find marriage impossible because he is not a citizen. Tragedy sweeps upon them swiftly and the little brother is taken to an orphan asylum because the authorities consider his sister unfit to care for him. Friendship, trust and sacrifice win, however, after tears and some of the most hilarious comedy seen on the screen in many a day. Ginger Rogers, Francis Lederer, J. Farrell MacDonald, Sidney Toler, Donald Meek and Jimmy Butler are featured. The production was directed by Stephen Roberts. Grand entertainment for the entire family.

Orpheum: "She Loves Me Not" and "Midnight". The famous stage success becomes a successful movie with Bing Crosby in the starring. Doing as it does with such desperate daring as college life and the more precise problem of hiding a night club lady out on the dormitories. With the famous Crosby singing ringing clear at set intervals, some gay comedy and the clever characterization of Miriam Hopkins all join in making this show pleasant to see. "Midnight" is ancient and time worn melodrama with Sidney Fox and O. P. Heggie acting with gusto.

Kingston: "Lottery Lover" and "Enter Madame". The United States Postal Laws are so strict with newspapers regarding lotteries of any description that it becomes difficult to properly describe the plot situation of the first film without wondering if it is a lottery or one of his sides might not find fault with the newspaper description of such goings on. So to avoid any misunderstanding, let it be said that "Lottery Lover" tells the story of some sailor boys on shore leave on the continent, and of one shy sailor in particular who learns about women while ashore. Lew Ayres and Pat Patterson head the cast. "Enter Madame" is a study in artistic temperament and concerns a flighty prima donna who thinks the whole wide world her oyster. Along with some excellent singing, some pretty stage effects and some good acting by Elissi Landi, and Gary Grant, this second picture proves to

Collection Of Christmas Seals

The furor for stamp collecting shows no sign of subsiding, so the New York Seal Collectors Club was formed at Olean in the fall. This club is a new venture. Its purpose is to promote interest in collecting Christmas Seals and its headquarters are with the State Committee on Tuberculosis.

Only a few collectors in the whole country have full sheets of Christmas Seals for the 26 years that these seals have been issued for tuberculosis work. The full sheet of 100 Christmas seals is the correct unit for the collector. The 1933 seal will have unique value in the future as it is the first issue that has a marginal message printed on its edge. The message reads, "Tuberculosis is Preventable." "Tuberculosis is Curable." The last seal on each sheet of seals sold since 1907 is inscribed with "U. S. A." and the year.

The 1907 and 1913 seals are very valuable, also. A collection of Christmas seals was presented to the President just before Christmas and is one of the most complete in the country. In this country there are some who have the entire collection since 1907.

To make collectors known to each other, provision is made at headquarters for registration of collectors by number. Three seals constitute "Initial Membership" in the club. The club will hold its annual meeting with the yearly meeting of the State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health and other meetings will be announced. Application for registration may be made through the local tuberculosis committee at the office, 74 John street, or by telephoning 1706 W. Blanks will be given those interested and other data about this now and lively club.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, Feb. 13.—The Missionary Society of the Rosendale Reformed Church will hold their annual all day sewing meeting at the home of Mrs. Harry Weep, Wednesday, February 13. Hospital supplies will be made for foreign missions.

John Olry was called to New York city. His sister, Mrs. Mohr of Brooklyn, died last Friday.

Fred Krom of Yonkers spent the week-end with his family.

Robert Schofield of Brooklyn and Mr. and Mrs. Weeks and daughter of Coxsack, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kelly.

The Rosendale basketball team is having a game and dance Thursday, February 14, at the Firemen's Hall. The Women's Auxiliary of the fire department had charge of the refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ruchert spent last week-end in New York city.

Mrs. Camille Hateau is spending a few days at her home here. Mrs. Hateau has been spending the winter in Astoria, L. I.

The Girls' Friendly Society of the Episcopal Church held a dance in the newly painted and decorated parish hall on Monday evening, February 11. Those attending spent an enjoyable evening.

IF YOUR BREATH HAS A SMELL YOU CAN'T FEEL WELL

When we eat too much, our food decays in our bowels. Our friends smell this decay coming out of our mouth and call it bad breath. We feel the poison of this decay all over our body. It makes us gloomy, grouchy and no good for anything. What makes the food decay in the bowels? Well, when we eat too much, our bile juice can't digest it. What is the bile juice? It is the most vital digestive juice in our body. Unless 2 pints of it are flowing from our liver into our bowels every day, our movements get hard and constipated and the food decays in our bowels. This decay sends poisons all over our body every six minutes. When our friends smell our bad breath (but we don't) and we feel like a whipped (tough) don't see a mouthwash or take a laxative. Get at the cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills which gently start the flow of your bile juice. But if "something better" is offered you, don't buy it, for it may be a colored (poisonous) pill, which loosens teeth, gripes and weakens the system in many people. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for.—214. ©1934 C.E.C.

Board of Health Meeting on Tuesday

Dr. Holcomb Says Kingston Is Getting Very Excellent Milk Under New State Code—Will Discuss Sanitary Code With Barbers and Beauty Shop Operators.

At the meeting of the Board of Health, Tuesday night, Dr. Frederic Holcomb, in discussing the milk report submitted for the past month, said Kingston is getting very excellent milk now under the new state milk code. As evidence, the doctor pointed to the low bacteria count.

The report showed a low count of 2,000 as the minimum and a high of 8,500. This is lower than former reports. Most of the milk dealers showed counts of from 4,000 to 6,000.

The board decided to uphold a ruling that admission back to school, following quarantine due to communicable disease, would be granted only by a certificate issued by Health Officer Dr. L. E. Sanford. This decision was reached after the commissioners discussed whether certificates should be issued by family physicians.

It was decided that the health officers should issue all certificates because the board of health is responsible for checking on all communicable diseases in the city, and could best determine through its own doctor and health nurse whether or not a pupil should be permitted to reenter school.

A movement was made to invite representatives of the barbers and beauty shop operators to meet with the board of health to discuss the state sanitary code. This action was taken after John Melville, sanitary inspector, reported that apparently there seems to be a misunderstanding about the laws of sanitation.

Concerning the matter, Mayor Conrad J. Helselman said he understood the barbers wished to have the common council adopt an ordinance making it necessary for city barbers to take out a license. This was asked, he said, with the intention of eliminating from the business all those improperly equipped. The laws and rules committee of the common council is studying the matter and will report on it at the next meeting.

Many barbers and operators of beauty shops feel that certain things in the state sanitary code are impractical, said Mr. Melville. He pointed out one specific provision that states "no powder puff, sponge or neck duster shall be used in any establishment." Barbers, he said, complain particularly about the neck duster prohibition. Others he said complained about sterilizing all their instruments, saying such action takes too much time and prevents them from giving their customers the best service.

Inspector Melville hoped to be spared the necessity of bringing the action before the board, he said, but felt it his duty to get the opinion of the health commissioners as to what steps he should take. He said he had suggested an open meeting for discussion of the code but it did not materialize.

Dr. Joseph Jacobson, wishing to let the public know that the board of health does not desire to be unfair in enforcing the state code, expressed himself as follows:

"We should let these operators of barber shops and beauty parlors understand that we are not making these laws locally. It's a state law and the duty of enforcement falls upon us. Some people are under the impression that we sit here and make up a lot of these things. This is a wrong impression and we cannot change provisions of a state law."

Dr. Sanford then suggested that officials of the local barbers' and beauty parlor operators' organizations meet with the board.

Charles Gregory, plumbing inspector, reported having investigated about a sewer odor at Broadway and West Chestnut street, and that the condition had been overcome. He reported that similar conditions had been investigated and remedied.

C. E. Officers Installed.

February 10, at the Sunday evening church service, the newly elected officers of the First Baptist Christian Endeavor Society, were installed by Milton Townsend, president of the Ulster County C. E. Union. The young people's chorus, under the direction of Mrs. Richard Wagner, sang one selection, and Adrian Caberly, the newly elected vice president, and Miss Ruth Koon, newly elected corresponding secretary, took part in the service. Mr. Townsend, in installing the new officers, carefully explained the duties of their offices to them and extended to them the best wishes of the county and state unions. A new constitution was adopted at the C. E. meeting Sunday evening and plans for activities for the coming year will soon be made.

BELL TO TOLL HAUPTMANN VERDICT

Clanging of the old bell in a belfry atop the Hunterdon county courthouse will announce that the jury has reached a verdict in the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann. Will Hauptmann's iron nerves weaken when he hears those solemn tones? Will they ring him to death, freedom or further legal skirmishes? A. Keith Barrowcliff, under-sheriff, is shown at right as he will look when he tolls the bell, which is shown in center. (Associated Press Photos)

'MAN CONFESSED'

An outburst by the Rev. Vincent G. Burns (above) brother of the notorious Georgia chain gang fugitive, as Attorney General David T. Burns cried: "A man confessed that murder to me in my church!" (Associated Press Photo)

CATSKILL GLEE CLUB

CONCERT FEBRUARY 23

Another one of those fine programs by the Catskill Glee Club will be presented at Clinton Avenue M. E. Church Monday evening, February 23, at 8:15. This will be the fourth annual appearance of the glee club in Kingston, and Roland E. Heermance will direct as usual, with Miss Evelyn Freer as accompanist.

The club has about 34 members this year, and the program has been prepared to please all. There have been some new humorous songs added to the regular program, and the men delight in singing them.

Mr. Heermance will sing a group of new baritone solos with Miss Freer as accompanist. He has done extensive studying the past summer at school and he promises his listeners a treat. The other guest artists will be announced later. There will be no admission for this program—just a free-will offering taken during the evening.

Violation of Liberty, Gist of Hoover Speech

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—Herbert Hoover sees violation of "fundamental American liberty" as a threat to the "life principle" of the nation. That was his warning at a Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club last night at which he called Abraham Lincoln an "inspiration" to America in the present period of its history.

"Lincoln was a great liberal," said the former president last night. "He believed passionately that Americans should be masters of the state and not the pawns of the state. He believed a fundamental spiritual truth had been revealed to humanity in the conception of personal liberty as a basis of society."

"Whatever violates, infringes or abrogates fundamental American liberty violates the life principle of America as a nation."

Lincoln in himself he said, was "the highest expression of American life."

SIZING ACTS AS A

PRIMER COAT, TOO

When painting wallboard not already sized, it is possible to color the sizing coat so that it will serve as a priming coat as well.

The sizing consists of a good interior spar varnish thinned with turpentine to about the consistency of linseed oil. To this varnish-size is added a small quantity of the paint that is to be used as the finish coat. Just enough to color it. The wallboard can then be finished with two or three coats of any wall paint.

Check Causes of Heat Loss; Save on Fuel

How to prevent loss of heat is one of the major problems of every home owner or prospective home owner in climates where heating systems are necessary in winter weather. Efficient solution of this problem results in fuel savings which sometimes are estimated at 50 per cent or higher, and also in added comfort and health protection to those living in the home.

While home owners know in a general way that prevention of heat loss lowers household expenses and increases living comfort, few realize how many ways there are for a house to lose heat unnecessarily.

Causes of loss of heat from the house are classed under two general headings: Air leakage and conduction.

Stop Air Leaks

Leakage commonly occurs in the joints between the window sash and the window frame, and between the frame and the house wall. It also occurs in cracks due to flaws in the structure, and in chimney flues not equipped with throat dampers.

Joints between window sash and frame may be closed with weatherstripping which, when installed by experts, cuts fuel costs appreciably. Joints between window frames and walls may be closed by sheet metal at the top and by building paper and caulking along the sides and across the bottom. Even with these precautions, shrinkage often causes a crack to form between wall and frame, which should be plugged with oakum and a caulking compound.

Caulking of window frames results in fuel economy and also prevents water leakage, which rots the wood and stains the wall.

Check Other Points

An open joint between the top of the wall and the underside of the roof is frequently found in poorly constructed houses; it should be closed by caulking. Leaks also occur between the top of the foundation and the sill, caused by mortar falling away from the sill. These crevices should be packed with new mortar.

Finally, air leakage may take place in chimneys, either from the lack of a throat damper in the flue of the fireplace or from failure to keep it closed when the fireplace is not in use. The loss of heat up the chimney is out of all proportion to its area, due to the strong draft that exists. All fireplaces should be equipped with throat dampers, and they should be kept closed when the fireplace is not in use.

Conductivity Losses

The second general cause of heat loss in a house is conduction through walls, floors, windows and roof. It occurs when warm air comes in contact with a colder conducting surface. To combat conduction some form of insulation is used. An architect or reliable contractor can determine the best insulation.

Frequently, more heat is lost through conduction in the window glass of a house than through the wall. To equip a house with either weather-stripped storm windows or double glazed sashes on all exposures may result in substantial fuel economies.

Only a very poorly constructed house is likely to suffer from all the foregoing weaknesses and no house has 100 per cent insulation. But many houses will have a sufficient number of defects to raise fuel bills much higher than necessary. The consequent economies and increased comfort will over-balance the expense and trouble of taking all measures necessary to produce a house easy to heat, and to keep heated at a constant temperature.

Sink Requisites

The sink that meets the maximum requirements of comfort is exactly the right height for the woman who will use it. Its surface is acid resisting and it will have a swinging central spout. There will be a good light over it.

Governor Clinton Hotel's New Cocktail Room

Colonial Setting Will Greet Guests

The Governor Clinton Hotel, which has always catered to the interest of the community, is following the trend of other up to date hotels by adding a very attractive new cocktail room which will be open to the public on Saturday, February 16.

Gerard Betz, the architect, has succeeded in creating a room which is restful in color and proportion. The side walls of the room are paneled in early American pine with antique finish. The ceiling is painted a soft blue with pine beams. Marine blue linoleum with a large gold star motif in the center covers the floor. The gold star motif is repeated in the ceiling and side walls by the use of star shaped electric fixtures of yellow glass which gives a soft light to the room. The large plate glass store windows across the front of the room has been given a more intimate feeling by the use of Venetian blinds and henna draperies. Comfortable chairs upholstered in henna leather make the room a place where one can enjoy his or her beverage in the spirit of Kingston's fine traditions. A distinctive feature of the room is a large mural which was painted by Judson Smith of Woodstock. This painting is flanked on each side by blue glass mirrors which gives depth to the room and forms the background of the bar, which is designed in early American pine to match the panelling on the side walls of the room.

The mural depicts a festive scene in the lives of the early residents of Kingston.

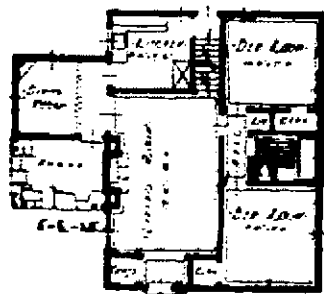

Mr. Smith found in his research work that the settlers of Kingston knew how to play in a dignified manner and enjoyed life more richly and genuinely than we do today. Little groups were in the habit of gathering at various homes for an hour of dancing and games at the time of day which corresponds to the modern cocktail hour. The mural not only reproduces the spirit of the early American days, but it is also in perfect harmony in tone, color and scale to that of the room. Mr. Smith has painted murals for 30 years in various types of public buildings. As an artist, he has been awarded first prizes and a gold medal at the Carnegie International, Chicago Institute of Arts and Detroit Institute of Arts. He has also lectured on art in museums, clubs and at Vassar College.

The management of the hotel extends a welcome to its many patrons to visit the new cocktail room.

A Small Provincial French Home

Features, Charm, Utility and Low Price

The simple charm of provincial France is pleasantly portrayed in today's small home suggestion. There is much to recommend it to the moderately sized family looking for an attractive yet inexpensive home. Waste space has been eliminated and room sizes have been kept to adequate yet thrifty dimensions. For the exterior walls, the working drawings call for the use of stucco over metal lath. White-washed common brick could be substituted effectively. Wood shingles, laid unevenly, are used on the roof. The entrance door shown is more than attractive and should be duplicated in building.

In place of a full sized dining room there is an adequate dining nook which opens via French doors to an attractive yet screened porch. In one corner is an open cupboard for dishes. A few steps away is the kitchen with its built-in cabinets and cupboards conveniently arranged. Downstairs there are two corner bedrooms with a bath in between and off the living room there is a stairway to the second floor which offers the possibility of a third bedroom.

To secure an accurate estimate of the construction cost of this home in your community, let a competent contractor estimate it from the working drawings. These may be obtained by sending $1 to the Home Features Service at 25 E. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

makes its purchase an economical investment for general use in the home, theatre, church, or elsewhere.

Housing Hints

Tips on How and What to Improve

Keep Insects Off Paint.

If oil of cedar or orthochlorbenzine is placed in a shallow dish and left in a room that is being painted, insects will be kept away.

Modernistic Effects

Modernistic effects, which are considered so smart today, can be obtained at little cost and inconvenience through the use of flexible wallboard. This material can be placed directly over the old walls, is easily workable and needs no surface treatment. It is especially effective when used in arched doorways and round-ings of corners.

Because of its durable and fire-proof qualities, flexible wallboard also is suitable for use in sheds, garages, roadside stands, summer cottages, bath houses and numerous other structures.

Cleaning Walls

When soiled spots appear on painted walls, the only satisfactory way to remove them is to wash the entire painted area. Attempts to clean the spots individually will leave rings. Also, it is well to clean the wall before repainting, as grease, soot, lint, dust and cobwebs should be removed. Here is a good cleaning compound for washing painted surfaces.

Dissolve one ounce of soap flakes in 16 ounces (one pint) of water and add about three ounces of turpentine. Stir the mixture rapidly and apply with brush or sponge.

Paint Screens.

During those seasons of the year when window screens and screen doors are used, privacy may be had by painting the screens with a thin coat of white paint. This will prevent those outside from looking in while those within may still look out.

Lumber Shorts Help to Reduce Building Costs

To the lumber-wise property owner, lumber "shorts" should be as popular as those handled by haberdashers.

For one of the most costly and unnecessary customs indulged in by the public is the purchase of lumber in long lengths and then cutting it up into shorter lengths when modernizing old buildings or constructing new ones.

In most instances, the lumber "shorts," varying from a few inches to 8 feet in length, will serve even better than the long planks or timbers. They cost less and frequently are better quality, grade for grade.

Only a comparatively small proportion of the pieces of lumber required for a home or the average commercial building need be in the longer lengths, such as 14 to 18 feet. A large number of short pieces is required between the windows, doors and corners; in sun parlors, floors, trim, window and door frames, roofs, for sheathing, cupboards, closets, cabinets, coal bins, shelves, storage rooms, wainscoting and scores of other uses.

Lumber prices usually vary according to length and grade. The price differentials are due partly to the fact that about half the lumber produced at the mills is necessarily in short lengths, usually 4 to 8 or 10 feet. They also are partly due to the wasteful and uneconomic custom of buying long lengths when short lengths will serve equally well.

Another point is that short-length lumber is often free from defects than long-length lumber. This is due to the fact that more and larger defects are allowed usually by the grading rules as the size of the piece increases.

By CLAUDE E. JACOB

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The first substantial recession in steel production in weeks was taken calmly by the securities markets today.

Share prices were somewhat hesitant at the start, but pushed up moderately here and there during the middle of the day. Bonds, on the whole, acted well, although foreign issues receded in spots. In commodities, grains were firm, and cotton about steady. In foreign exchange dealings, gold currencies rallied sharply in response to Secretary Mongentha's statement that the stabilization fund was standing the dollar.

Can stocks led the rally in shares, with American getting up 2 points and Continental half as much. Further demand for utility preferreds was notable, with Commonwealth and Southern and American and Foreign Power preferreds rising a point or so. Steels dipped a little, then stiffened. In rails, Union Pacific and Santa Fe rose about a point. Some of the non-ferrous metals perked up, with U. S. Smelting and Cerro de Pasco up a point. Demand was largely in industrial specialties, however. American Telephone was a soft spot, losing a point and failing to recover.

Valentine Party

A Valentine party will be held in the social hall of the First Presbyterian Church Thursday evening for the entire membership of the church and the various organizations connected with it. The party has been planned by the Christadelphian young people, who have arranged an evening of fun for their friends of all ages who will celebrate the spirit of St. Valentine in joyous fashion. The program will commence at 8 o'clock and continue until the good wishes of the holiday have found their way into every heart present. Valentine refreshments, games of real fun, and more of those old-fashioned square-sets which seem to be so popular among local people, are being counted upon to enliven the occasion. The Christadelphians hope to see many of their friends among those attending.

D. A. R. Card Party

One of the social affairs which Kingstonians look forward to every winter is the card party held in the old historic home owned by Wiltwyck Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. On Tuesday, Lincoln's Birthday, the scene at the chapter house was a colorful one. Tables had been set up in the large assembly room, the smaller board meeting room and the dining room. There were 19 tables in play in these rooms, which were prettily decorated for the occasion. Mrs. Ashton Hart was chairman of the committee who arranged the party and was ably assisted by Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and Mrs. Howard St. John. During the afternoon tea, dainty cakes and cookies were served. The money raised by this party will be sent to "Tamassee," one of the southern schools which is maintained through the efforts of the D. A. R. Society.

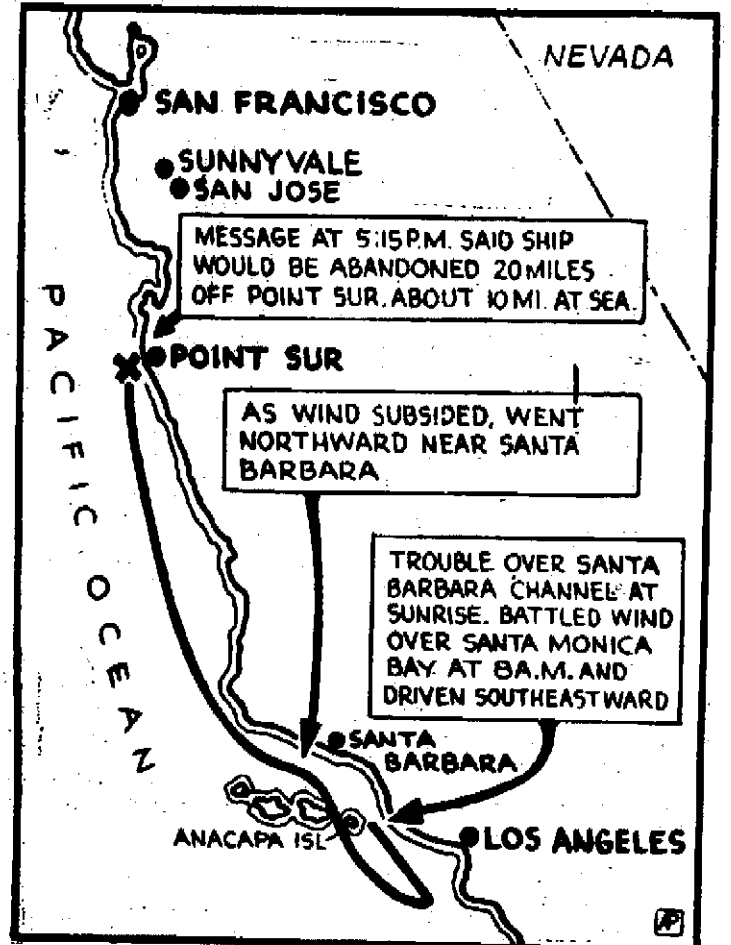

Lowell Club

On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club met at the home of Mrs. Butler on Manor avenue. The Freeman was asked to make one correction in the report of last week's meeting. Request Made to P. R. A.

Norwich, N. Y., Feb. 12 (AP).—A request for a federal survey by the I.W.A. with a view of establishing a city municipal power plant was urged here today following action taken by the common council last night. The council protested against the electric and gas rates charged by the Associated Gas and Electric Company.

ANNUAL RECEPTION AT CLINTON CHAPTER

The annual custom of tendering a reception to the recently installed worthy matron and worthy patron was held at the Masonic Hall on Wall street.

In a hall beautifully decorated with evergreens, under the leadership of the associate matron, Lena R. Burger, the officers and floral staff exemplified a beautiful degree entitled "The Wheel of Good Wishes," which was written by M. W. Grace Voorhees Merritt. The matron, Mathilde M. Hobush, and the patron, Edward M. Stanbrough, were presented to the assembly. After the presentation, the worthy matron, carrying a huge bouquet of roses, was escorted to the center of the room. As she stood on a small pedestal, she was invested with a belt, and each officer saying an appropriate verse drew a ribbon, thus forming the spokes of the wheel. The floral staff then made a complete circle and formed the rim. As the officers rotated, the soloist, Elizabeth Kieffer, sang "Stay as Sweet as You Are." Many gifts were presented to the worthy matron and worthy patron, among them being substantial sums of money from the chapter. A musical program presented by Miss Eva Clinton, Mrs. Alice T. Leonard, Donald Clark, and Leonard Stine, was thoroughly enjoyed. Following this reception a social hour was held and refreshments served.

OLIVE BRIDGE M. E. CHURCH SERVICES FOR FEBRUARY 17.

Olive Bridge, Feb. 12.—A goodly number was present at the church services last Sunday, which is most gratifying to the pastor. The services were Sunday, February 17, will be as follows: Olive Bridge Sunday School at 10:15 a. m. Mrs. Ezra Shikworth, superintendent, followed by the morning worship at 11 o'clock. Evening worship at 7:30 p. m. The pastor's subject will be "The Rest of the Soul." All are urged to attend one of these services. On Friday evening, February 22, the young people will meet at the parsonage at 7 o'clock sharp for their devotional and social meeting. The subject for the evening, which will be "The Story of the Book of Esther," will be treated by three young people, and it would be profitable if each young person would read the book before coming to the meeting.

About The Folks

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ceballos of 7 Cordis street are receiving congratulations over the birth of a daughter, Marie Louise.

Miss Emma Moeller, a beautician of 270 Fair street, has returned from New York, where she spent a week getting new ideas about her business.

Germany is certainly a nation for trouble. Under Hitler's population propaganda, with a worse depression than any other industrial nation, and so improvement in sight, she has started counting the birth rate again. It won't do Hitler any good, either. He'll be out before those babies are old enough to vote. Nothing that private enterprise has suffered during this depression equals the agony of mothers as the freedom waves fly away from $4,000,000 worth of work.

Hauptmann's Fate In Hands of Jury

Hauptmann's Testimony

As to Hauptmann's own testimony: "His interest in the result may be taken into consideration on the question of whether he is telling the truth. His previous convictions of crime may be considered only as affecting his credit as a witness."

Of Amundson Hockmuth, the aged man who said he saw Hauptmann with a ladder in a car near the Lindbergh home on the day of the crime: "This testimony, if true, is highly significant. Do you think that there is any reason upon the whole to doubt the truth of the old man's testimony? May he not have well and honestly remembered the circumstance in view of the fact that that very night the child was carried away?"

When Justice Trenchard finished his charge he had to warn the spectators to cease their "humming and hawing." He told the attorneys to argue any exceptions to his charge, after the jury retired.

As to Hauptmann's alibi witnesses, the judge told the jury: "You should consider the fact, where it is the fact, that several of the witnesses have been convicted of crime and determine whether or not their credibility has been affected thereby. And where it appears that witnesses have made contradictory statements you should consider that fact and determine their credibility as affected thereby."

Circumstantial Evidence

His remark on circumstantial evidence was: "When the case against the defendant is made up wholly of a chain of circumstances and there is reasonable doubt as to any fact the existence of which is essential to establish guilt, the defendant should be acquitted."

"It is not sufficient that the circumstance prove, coincide with, account for and therefore render probable the hypothesis that is sought to be established by the prosecution. They must exclude to a moral certainty every other hypothesis but the single one of guilt."

Official Transcript

Flemington, N. J., Feb. 13 (AP)—Justice Thomas W. Trenchard delivered the following charge today to the jury trying Bruno Richard Hauptmann for the Lindbergh baby murder:

Ladies and gentlemen of the jury: The prisoner at the bar, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, stands charged in this indictment with the murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., at the township of East Amwell in this county on the first day of March, 1932.

It now becomes your duty to render a verdict upon the question of his guilt or his innocence and upon the degree of his guilt, if guilty. In doing this you must be guided by the principles of law bearing upon the case that I will now proceed to lay before you.

In the determination of all questions of fact, the sole responsibility is with the jury. You are the sole judges of the evidence, of the weight of the evidence, and of the credibility of the witnesses. Any comments that I may make upon the evidence will be made, not for the purpose of controlling you in your view of the facts but only to aid you in applying the principles of law to the facts as you may find them. You must not consider what I shall say concerning the evidence as being accurate, but you must depend upon your own recollection. You must not only consider the evidence to which I shall refer, but you must consider all of the evidence in the case.

In this as in every criminal case, the defendant is presumed to be innocent, which presumption continues until he is proved to be guilty.

To support the indictment and to justify a conviction, the state must prove the facts sufficient for that purpose by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt; and that burden never shifts from the state. If there be reasonable doubt whether the defendant be guilty, he is to be declared not guilty.

Not Easily Defined

Reasonable doubt is a term often used, probably pretty well understood, but not easily defined. It is not a mere possible doubt, because everything relating to human affairs is open to some possible or imaginary doubt. It is that state of the case which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all of the evidence, leaves the minds of the jurors in that condition that they cannot say that they feel an abiding conviction that the charge is true. The evidence must establish the truth of the fact to a moral certainty, a certainty that commands the reason and judgment of those who are bound to act upon it.

But I, after canvassing carefully the evidence, giving the accused the benefit of reasonable doubt, you are brought to the conclusion that the defendant is guilty, you should so decide by your verdict.

To make out a case of guilt, the state must establish by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt, first, the death of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., as a result of a felonious stroke inflicted on the first day of March, 1932, at the township of East Amwell in this county.

To support that charge the state has produced evidence to the following effect: The fact of death seems to be proved, and admitted. At the time of the death the child was about twenty months old on the evening of March 1, 1932, the child was pre-occupied by his mother and sister, Betty Gow, at the Lindbergh home in East Amwell township in this county.

Mouth of Child

The evidence is to the effect that the child was then in good health, a normal child except for a slight cough that the mother and the nurse, Betty Gow, had been observing about the child and about 8 o'clock left the home and closed the window that between that hour and 10 o'clock the child was removed from the bed by some person and carried away with the clothing in which it had been put to bed, which clothing has been described to you.

There is evidence from which you may conclude, if you see fit, that the person who carried away the child entered the nursery or child's bedroom through the southeast window of the nursery room, by means of a ladder placed against the side of the house, under or near the window, and that this occurred shortly after 9 o'clock at night.

Lindbergh Evidence

You will recall the evidence of Colonel Lindbergh to the effect that as he was sitting in his living room downstairs, he heard a strange noise about that time, the sound of wood on wood, like the striking of two pieces of wood together, like the boards of a crate falling together off of a stand or chair.

Colonel Lindbergh testified that he could not tell at the time where the sound came from, and at the moment he did not think much about it. Later, at about 10 o'clock, when the disappearance of the child became known, a strange and broken ladder was found, about 60 or 70 feet from the southeast window, with indications that it had been used in entering and leaving the window; and also there were the imprints of a man's shoe in the soft ground under or near the window.

Miss Gow and Mrs. Whately testified that later, about April 1, 1932, they found the thumbguard, which Miss Gow had securely tied to the wrist of the child's sleeping suit when she put him to bed, that they found his thumbguard in the road leading from the Lindbergh home and on the Lindbergh property, with the knot still untied, which you may possibly conclude that the sleeping suit was stripped off of the child at that place.

A Dirty Smudge

There is also evidence to the effect that there was a dirty smudge on the bed clothes, and also on the floor of the nursery, leading from the window to the child's crib, and a ransom letter left on the window sill.

Later, the child's dead and decomposed body was found by a colored man in or hard by a shallow grave, not far from the road, a few miles away in Mercer county.

Dr. Mitchell, who performed the autopsy, testified that the child died of a fractured skull, the result of external violence; that the fracture extended from a point about an inch and a half posterior to the left, it extended forward probably three or four inches, it extended upward to one of the fontanels, it extended backward around the back of the head; in other words, it was a very extensive fracture.

He further testified that, in his opinion, death occurred either instantaneously or within a very few minutes following the actual fracturing occurrence. It is the contention of the state that the fracture described by Dr. Mitchell was inflicted upon the child when it was seized and carried out of the nursery window down the ladder and when the ladder broke.

Now, the ladder has been placed in evidence. Its broken condition when found in the yard has been described to you.

The fact that the child's body was found in Mercer county raises a presumption that the death occurred there; but that, of course, is a rebuttable presumption, and may be overcome by circumstantial evidence. In the present case the state contends that the uncontradicted evidence of Colonel Lindbergh and Mr. Mitchell and other evidence, justifies the reasonable inference that the felonious stroke occurred in East Amwell township in Mercer county, when the child was seized and carried out of the nursery window and down the ladder by the defendant, and that death was instantaneous; and from the evidence you may conclude, if you see fit, that the child was feloniously stricken on the first day of March at the township of East Amwell in this county, and died as a result of that stroke.

Secondly, the state, in order to justify a verdict of guilty, must establish by the evidence, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the death was caused by the act of the defendant. The uncontradicted evidence is that the child was left by the mother and the nurse in the nursery, and the window was then closed.

The evidence justifies the inference, if you see fit to draw it, that the window was maliciously opened and the child seized shortly after nine o'clock that night. You will, of course, recall the evidence to the effect that almost immediately after it was discovered that the child had been taken from its crib in the nursery, there was found the ransom letter, demanding fifty thousand dollars, on the window sill, on which was placed a peculiar symbol and peculiar punch holes, stating that directions would later be given for the delivery of the money. There is also evidence to the effect that a few days later Colonel Lindbergh received a second letter with like symbols, referring to the original ransom letter, and reiterating that directions for the delivery of the ransom money would be given. Meanwhile, Colonel Brockbridge, the friend and confidant of Colonel Lindbergh, had identified himself with the case in an endeavor to help his friend.

There is evidence to the effect that a few days before March 1, 1932, Dr. Condon had indicated an advertisement in the Bronx newspaper in which offering to act as a go-between, that a few days later Dr. Condon received a letter in which he was asked to act as a go-between, and enclosing a letter to Colonel Lindbergh, telling Dr. Condon that after he got the money to put words in the New York American that the money was ready, and the letter to Colonel Lindbergh said Condon may act as go-between, to give him the money, with directions as to the purchase and how thereafter the money was to be paid.

There is evidence to the effect that Dr. Condon, in the advertisement, offered to act as a go-between, and that he was dealing with Dr. Condon.

As I have said, the defendant denies that he was the man who was paid the ransom money, and there is other testimony which, if credible and believed by you, supports his statement.

You will consider, as bearing upon that question, the fact that a ransom money was retained, now, one it does not appear that many of the ransom bills were traced to the possession of the defendant? Does it not appear that many thousands of dollars of ransom bills were found in his garage, hidden in the walls or under the floor, that others were found in his room when he was arrested, and others passed by him rested, and others passed by him from time to time?

You may also consider in this connection the evidence to the effect that shortly after the delivery of the ransom money the defendant began to purchase stocks in a much larger way and to spend money more freely than he had before.

He says that he found them in a shoe box which had been resting on the top shelf of his closet several months after the box had been left with him, and that then, without telling anybody, secretly hid them, or most of them, in the garage, where they were found by the police. Do you believe his testimony that the money was left with him in a shoe box, and that it rested on the top shelf in his closet for several months?

His wife, as I recall it, said that she never saw the box, and I do not recall that any witness excepting the defendant testified that they ever saw the shoe box there.

As bearing upon the question whether or not the defendant was the man who took the child and left the ransom letter on the window sill, you should, of course, consider the evidence with respect to the ladder, if you find, as seems likely, that it was used in reaching the nursery. That the ladder was there seems to be unquestioned. If it was not there for the purpose of reaching that nursery window, for what purpose was it there?

There is evidence from which you may conclude, if you see fit, that the defendant built the ladder, although he denies it. Does not the evidence satisfy you that at least a part of the wood from which the ladder was built came out of the flooring of the attic of the defendant?

Tells of Letter

Dr. Condon testified that shortly thereafter he received a letter addressed to him, and delivered to him by a taxi cab driver, giving him instructions how to proceed. The taxi cab driver testified that he was given that letter by the defendant, Hauptmann. Dr. Condon testified that, as a result of the directions contained in that letter and another letter, he first, on March 13, 1932, an interview, in Woodlawn cemetery with a man whom he identified as the defendant, after he identified him for more than an hour. In that interview Dr. Condon said that the defendant, after having run away from the gate, said, among other things, "It is too dangerous. Might be 20 years or burn. Would I burn if the baby is dead? I am only a go-between."

Held on a Boat

Dr. Condon also testified in effect that the defendant said that the baby was being held on a boat by others, that "we are the right parties," that the baby was held in the crib by safety pins, and he said that he could send the sleeping suit. Dr. Condon further testified that later he received the sleeping suit, and finally a letter directing that the money be ready by Saturday night and to put in advertisement in the newspaper, "Everything O. K.," and that these directions were complied with by him, Condon, with the acquiescence of Colonel Lindbergh and Colonel Brockbridge, the latter of whom had been in close touch with Dr. Condon during practically the whole of the ransom negotiations.

There is testimony to the effect that on this Saturday night, April 2, 1932, there was delivered to Dr. Condon's residence a letter containing further instructions, and that as a result thereof on that evening Colonel Lindbergh, who was there waiting, drove Dr. Condon to the entrance to St. Raymond's cemetery with the ransom money; that Dr. Condon alighted and contacted with a man, and after some talk and some delay handed him the package containing fifty thousand dollars of ransom money, thirty-five thousand dollars of which was in gold certificates, the numbers of which bills had been taken.

"Impossible Testimony"

It is argued that Dr. Condon's testimony is inherently improbable and should be in part rejected by you, but you will observe that his testimony is corroborated in large part by several witnesses whose credibility has not been impeached in any manner whatsoever.

Of course, if it is in the minds of the jury a reasonable doubt as to the truth of any testimony, such testimony should be rejected but, upon the whole, is there any doubt in your mind as to the reliability of Dr. Condon's testimony?

There is evidence to the effect that after Dr. Condon alighted with the money he was hailed by a man on the other side of the hedge, to whom he finally delivered the ransom money.

Colonel Lindbergh testified that the voice that hailed Condon was that of the defendant. Dr. Condon testified that the man to whom he delivered the money was the defendant. It is denied by the defendant, and there is other testimony bearing upon the matter, and so that question becomes one for your determination.

It is argued that Colonel Lindbergh could not have identified that voice, and that it is unlikely that the defendant would have talked with Condon. Well, those questions are for the determination of this jury, after having patiently listened to the evidence bearing upon those topics. If you find that the defendant was the man to whom the ransom money was delivered, as a result of the directions in the ransom notes, bearing symbols like those on the original ransom note, the question is pertinent; was not the defendant the man who left the ransom note on the window sill of the nursery, and who took the child from his crib, after opening the closed window?

Gang Argument

It is argued by defendant's counsel that the kidnapping and murder was done by a gang, and not by the defendant, and that the defendant was in no wise concerned therein. The argument was to the effect that it was done by a gang, with the help or connivance of some one or more servants of the Lindbergh or Morrow households.

Now do you believe that? Is there any evidence in this case whatsoever to support any such conclusion?

A very important question in the case is, did the defendant Hauptmann write the original ransom note found on the window sill? And the other ransom notes which followed? Numerous experts testified that the defendant Hauptmann wrote every one of the ransom notes, and Mr. Osborn, Senior, said that the conclusion was irresistible, unanswerable and overwhelming. On the other hand, the defendant denies that he wrote them, and a handwriting expert, called by him, so testified. And so the fact becomes one for your determination. The weight of the evidence to prove the genuineness of handwriting is wholly for the jury.

As bearing upon the question whether or not the defendant was the man to whom was paid the ransom money in the cemetery, you will, of course, consider the evidence to the effect that the defendant had written the address and telephone number of Dr. Condon on the door jamb of his closet; and if you believe that he did, although he now denies it, you may conclude that it throws light upon the question whether or not he was dealing with Dr. Condon.

As I have said, the defendant denies that he was the man who was paid the ransom money, and there is other testimony which, if credible and believed by you, supports his statement.

You will consider, as bearing upon that question, the fact that a ransom money was retained, now, one it does not appear that many of the ransom bills were traced to the possession of the defendant? Does it not appear that many thousands of dollars of ransom bills were found in his garage, hidden in the walls or under the floor, that others were found in his room when he was arrested, and others passed by him rested, and others passed by him from time to time?

You may also consider in this connection the evidence to the effect that shortly after the delivery of the ransom money the defendant began to purchase stocks in a much larger way and to spend money more freely than he had before.

The defendant says that these ransom bills, money, were left with him by one Fisch, a man now dead. Do you believe that?

He says that he found them in a shoe box which had been resting on the top shelf of his closet several months after the box had been left with him, and that then, without telling anybody, secretly hid them, or most of them, in the garage, where they were found by the police. Do you believe his testimony that the money was left with him in a shoe box, and that it rested on the top shelf in his closet for several months?

His wife, as I recall it, said that she never saw the box, and I do not recall that any witness excepting the defendant testified that they ever saw the shoe box there.

As bearing upon the question whether or not the defendant was the man who took the child and left the ransom letter on the window sill, you should, of course, consider the evidence with respect to the ladder, if you find, as seems likely, that it was used in reaching the nursery. That the ladder was there seems to be unquestioned. If it was not there for the purpose of reaching that nursery window, for what purpose was it there?

There is evidence from which you may conclude, if you see fit, that the defendant built the ladder, although he denies it. Does not the evidence satisfy you that at least a part of the wood from which the ladder was built came out of the flooring of the attic of the defendant?

Largely Circumstantial

The evidence produced by the state is largely circumstantial in character. In order to justify the conviction of the defendant upon circumstantial evidence, it is necessary not only that all of the circumstances concur to show that he committed the crime charged, but that they are inconsistent with any other rational conclusion.

It is not sufficient that the circumstances proved coincide with, account for and therefore render probable the hypothesis that is sought to be established by the prosecution. They must exclude to a moral certainty every other hypothesis but the single one of guilt, and if they do not do this, the jury should find the defendant not guilty.

And when the case against the defendant is made up wholly of a chain of circumstances, and there is reasonable doubt as to any fact, the existence of which is essential to establish guilt, the defendant should be acquitted.

But the crime of murder is not one which is always committed in the presence of witnesses, and if not so committed, it must be established by circumstantial evidence or not at all.

And where the essential facts and circumstances are proved, which cannot be explained upon any other theory than that the defendant is guilty of the crime charged against him, such evidence should be considered as satisfactory and convincing as that of the most direct and positive character.

If the state has not satisfied you by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that the death of the child was caused by the act of the defendant, he must be acquitted.

But if, on the other hand, the state has satisfied you beyond a reasonable doubt that the child's death was caused by the unlawful and criminal act of the defendant, while stealing and carrying away the child and its clothing, of which the state, the probable consequences might be bloodshed, it is murder, and if murder, the degree thereof must then be determined.

Now, our statute declares, among other things: Murder, which shall be committed in perpetrating, or attempting to perpetrate, any burglary, shall be murder in the first degree. The state contends that the murder in this case was committed in perpetrating a burglary, and is murder in the first degree.

I charge you that if murder was committed in perpetrating a burglary, it is murder in the first degree, without reference to the question whether such killing was willful or unintentional; and I further charge you, as requested by the defendant, that in order to convict this defendant you must be satisfied, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the death of the child ensued from committing, or attempting to commit, burglary, at or about the time and place in question.

Burglary Statute

Our statute relating to burglary says: "Any person who shall by night willfully or maliciously break and enter any dwelling house with intent to steal and commit a battery shall be guilty of a high misdemeanor."

If, therefore, the defendant by night willfully and maliciously broke and entered the Lindbergh dwelling house with intent to steal the child and its clothing and to commit a battery on the child, he committed a burglary; and if the murder was committed in perpetrating a burglary, it is murder in the first degree.

In the circumstances of this case you must be satisfied that the window was shut and that it was raised and opened by the defendant and that he entered the house.

There is evidence from which you may conclude, if you see fit, that the defendant feloniously, willfully and maliciously broke and entered the dwelling house of Colonel Lindbergh in the night time with intent to steal the child and its clothing and commit a battery upon the child, that defendant brought the ladder to the Lindbergh house in East Amwell township in this county, and placed it up against the house near the nursery window, shortly after nine o'clock at night he ascended the ladder maliciously and willfully, opened the closed window and entered the nursery room, that he seized the child and its clothing and carried it out of the nursery room window, and that the fracture of the skull which caused the child's death was inflicted when the child was seized by the defendant and carried out and down the ladder, and when the ladder broke.

If you find that the murder was committed by the defendant in perpetrating a burglary, it is murder in the first degree, even though the killing was unintentional.

If there is a reasonable doubt that the murder was committed by the defendant in perpetrating a burglary, he must be acquitted.

I am requested to charge, and do charge, that each juror must reach his own judgment, after discussion of the facts with his fellow jurors.

If you find the defendant guilty of murder in the first degree, you may, if you see fit, by your verdict, and a part thereof, recommend imprisonment at hard labor for life. If you should return a verdict of murder in the first degree and nothing else, the punishment which would be inflicted on that verdict would be death.

If you desire to return a verdict of murder in the first degree, you must, with imprisonment for life, and you must put in your verdict, and cause the law books that every one convicted of murder in the first degree, its accessories, abettors, counselors and procurers, shall suffer death unless the jury shall, by their verdict and as a part thereof, upon and after consideration of all the evidence, recommend imprisonment at hard labor for life, in which case this and no greater punishment shall be imposed.

The clerk may read the jury until they have agreed upon their verdict.

Albany Man Held For Investigation

Arthur Keefe, 20, of 63 Liberty street, Albany, was remanded to jail by City Judge Bernard A. Culliton, this morning, pending an investigation into his presence in Kingston. Keefe was held into court on a charge of vagrancy.

The young man was taken from the Y. M. C. A., in answer to a telephone call, Tuesday night at 2:15, by Patrolmen Bert Soper and Ralph Stewart. He had been acting strangely, it was said. Keefe was sent to jail for the night by Sergeant James V. Simpson.

This morning the charge of vagrancy was preferred against him, after a message by teletype had been sent to Albany regarding his record. An unfavorable reply came back, and thus Judge Culliton decided to hold him for two days before pronouncing sentence.

K. OF C. AT GET-TOGETHER MEETING AT COXSACKIE

Monday evening a number of members of Kingston Council, No. 275, Knights of Columbus, journeyed to Coxsackie where that council arranged a joint meeting of Kingston and Catskill Councils. Nearly 200 Knights from the three councils were present. The meeting was presided over by acting Grand Knight Fitzpatrick of Coxsackie. Brief addresses were made by the district deputy of the 40th N. Y. district, Charles J. Sparboro; Grand Knight Zindell of Catskill Council; Patrick T. Murphy, of Kingston and Robert A. Donnarumma, grand knight of Kingston Council. Following the meeting the knights repaired to the American Legion building, where a dinner was served.

During the dinner music was furnished by the Porter Brothers Band. Many entertaining, singing and dancing acts were presented by various members of the three councils. Joe Lombardi, of Coxsackie Council, was in charge of the entertainment and kept the audience amused with his unusual appeal as a master of ceremonies.

FIRST CREDITORS' MEETING OF HAUPTMANN SHOP TODAY

Walter J. Miller as referee in bankruptcy held the first meeting of creditors of the Hauptmann Shop on Wall street, Louis Braunstein, proprietor, at the courthouse this morning. Andrew J. Cook was elected trustee and Charles de la Vergne retained as attorney. The meeting was then adjourned for two weeks for further testimony. The shop formerly occupied by the Hauptmann family is being sold and will shortly reopen as a retail store.

Clermonts' Spectacular Finish Beats Clinton Ave. Aces, 31-30

At Hopworth Hall last night, before a crowd of well over 200 ardent rooters, Fuller's Clermonts defeated the Clinton Avenue Aces by 31-30. A hard drive in the final period earned a victory after the Clermonts had been trailing their fast stepping rivals for the first three quarters. The game, which was a benefit for Harold Quick who was injured in the initial encounter between the two quintets, was one of the best played amateur games this year, and the large crowd of fans continually showed their appreciation.

The winners fell behind immediately after the opening tap and only pulled the game out of the fire in the last three minutes of play. The score at the end of the first quarter was 16-6 with marked superiority shown by the Aces. This was the loser's best period, however, as the Clermonts began closing the gap and at the end of the second quarter were within three points of their opponents. The third stanza was even and at the opening of the final period the score stood at 26-23. The Clermonts then scored 11 points to none out of their rivals by one.

Purvis counted high for the winners with five fields and a foul. He was closely followed for honors by Myers who garnered four fields and two fouls for a total of 10. Teetsel, Rosas, Evory and Rifenbary all scored three fields apiece for the losers. Teetsel added three fouls and led with nine.

Schilling Five Beats Z. N. P. Quintet, 48-32

The Schilling Furniture Co. Five decisively trimmed the Z. N. P. team last night at White Eagle Hall by the count of 48-32. With Don Kelly leading the attack in the opening half the victors ran up a commanding lead of 24-13. They scored 24 more in the last half while the losers ran their count to 32.

Kelly was the outstanding star of the evening finding the loop for nine straight field goals. Munson followed with five fields. Schilling did not score a single shot but every member of the team counted for at least one field.

Kennock, the Z. N. P.'s right guard, was the power on the losers' side. He scored four fields and four fouls, to lead with a count of 12. Gelsler and Kieffer each dropped in three fields.

Tonight at New Paltz the Schilling Five will play the Normal quintet.

Among Their Sporting Souvenirs —By Pap

Athletics are slow to discard the things which they feel added to their moments of triumph. It might be a piece of equipment, part of their uniform, or simply some good luck charm. In some instances they would feel lost without these comforting tokens.

Jack Dempsey's famous sweater, tattered and worn in long service, was indispensable to his peace of mind. An odd picture of the old Manassas Mauler presented in this ancient style coat sweater with pockets as he entered the ring to defend his title for a purse of half a million dollars or more. The old garment must have been a relic of his earliest fistic experiences. You couldn't have driven Jack into the ring without it.

Then there was Tony Lazzeri with his antique felder's glove. Worn and torn from long, hard usage, it barely clung together on his hand. Do you think Tony would discard it when he came up to the big league with the Yankees? Indeed, he would not.

He would most likely still be using it had not Babe Ruth spotted it one afternoon on his way to his position in right field.

"No wonder you've been making so many errors," Babe roared; and with a mighty heave tossed the glove into the crowded grandstand. Somehow or other Tony managed to struggle along with a new glove.

Method in Dazzy's Madness

Foxy old Dazzy Vance hated to part with the old undershirt, even though it was slit from the wrist clear to the elbow. Just a lucky shirt, the old speed-ball pitcher would explain. He discarded it only after the officials decided that the flapping of the torn sleeve disconcerted the batter when Dazzy delivered a ball—something the Dazzler more than likely knew all the while.

Bobby Jones' famous putter, "Calamity Jane," played an important part in scoring his historic grand slam. When Bobby retired from the St. Andrews Club in Scotland, as a permanent exhibit. He missed his favorite when he tried to match strokes against the field in the Masters' tournament last spring.

Shortly after the World War Mark Arie of Champaign, Ill., purchased a 12-gauge pump gun for $50. With this battered piece the veteran Illinois marksman has bagged over

The average trap shooter is particular about his shooting iron but Arie is content to string along with the old gun which has brought him just about every trapshooting championship on the books.

More Catering To Caprice

If you were to see Connie Mack seated in the Athletics' dugout with the traditional score-card you would think something strangely dream-like was being photographed with the overcast sky.

When Max Baer crawls through the ropes to fight he wears a white robe with "Steve McGowan" lettered across the back. The robe is a souvenir of Hollywood and was used by the champion in a movie.

Johnny Dundee, a great little fighter a few years ago, had a pair of blue trunks which he considered vital to scoring a victory. The only time he mislaid them and wore a borrowed pair, Willie Jackson knocked him out in the first round.

All silly notions, perhaps, but if they give an athlete the proper mental edge they serve their purpose.

Ranger Winning Spree Carries Them to Top

New York, Feb. 13 (AP).—The first month and a half of 1935 has brought an entirely new picture in the American section of the National Hockey League—generally the source of most of the excitement—and right in the center of it are the New York Rangers.

In last place on New Year's Day, the Rangers went on a winning spree that has carried them to the top.

The Blue Shirts rose into a three-way tie with Boston and Chicago for first place when they walloped the St. Louis Eagles 5 to 1 while the Blackhawks took a 3 to 0 drubbing from the Montreal Maroons and the Bruins kept pace by turning back Toronto's speedy Maple Leafs 6 to 5 in an exciting overtime encounter.

The Rangers, however, have one more game on the schedule than either of their rivals and thus have an advantage in getting points.

The Rangers' reserves did all the scoring in last night's rather top-sided encounter that carried New York to the top. Cecil Dillon pulled the "bat trick"—three goals.

The Bruins came from behind four times in all to win with Eddie Shore setting the pace most of the time.

Hooler Smith scored two goals in the Maroons' shutout victory.

Baker Predicts That Campbell Will Break Present Speed Record

Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 12 (AP).—The man who watches the clocks believes that Sir Malcolm Campbell, last of the thunder riders to drive an automobile above 200 miles an hour, will better 300 this time—and finish breezing, as all champions do.

T. Warren Baker, a slim dark, energetic young man who goes in for speed himself, has had his fingers on the mechanical pulse that times Sir Malcolm ever since the jaunty Englishman started breaking speed records at Daytona Beach, in 1923.

As chief steward for the American Automobile Association contest board he passes on the condition of the beach. He says when Campbell can't and can't run and certifies the times caught by Odis Porter, official timer.

So he knows Campbell. He knows the 11½-mile stretch of sand where the 50-year-old Briton will loose his rebuilt monster Bluebird late this week or early next.

Not for a moment does he share the feeling instinctive elsewhere that Sir Malcolm may run out of luck this time, wind up in deadly crashes as did Frank Lockhart and Lee Bibbe at Daytona Beach, Ray Keck at Indianapolis, and Major H. O. D. Segrave in a speedboat abroad, after they had bettered 200 miles an hour on wheels.

"Campbell has the car to do 300," he said today as he sat in the office where he administers the TERA affairs for this district.

"He is a great driver. He knows exactly what he is doing every moment. Give him a good beach and I believe he will set a new record between 200 and 310 miles an hour—say 265 to be exact."

Equipose Makes His Debut in West Today

Los Angeles, Feb. 12 (AP).—Equipose, future book favorite for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, makes his 1935 debut here today in the San Diego handicap at a fast mile.

"Ekip" will carry top weight of 128 pounds, conceding some 17 pounds to his nearest foe in the race. Ted Clark, Equipose's agent, announced on the Santa Anita track will mark his first visit to the post where he recorded a sensational victory over Fairview and Mr. Kibbey in the Gold Cup stakes at Belmont Park in the United West program last fall.

List of Court Of Honor Awards

A Court of Honor for the Kingston District, Ulster-Greene Council, was held Tuesday evening and many Scouts from troops in the district received badges indicating advancement in rank and merit badge awards.

A feature of the ceremonies was the first official recognition of a Sea Scout patrol in this Council, when eight members of Troop 12 faced the judges and received their badges as coxswains or apprentices.

The judges, gownned in judicial robes, maintained the dignity of the occasion, the ceremonies being held in the court room at the court house. Dr. Julian Gifford of Kingston presided as chief judge and with D. C. Van Inken, superintendent of schools, and Scout Executive Wright made the awards. Dr. Gifford also addressed the Scouts present, at the opening of court.

There was one eagle scout award, to Gilbert Barnhart of Troop 6. Mrs. Barnhart was present and was awarded the small duplicate pin that is given to mothers of scouts receiving awards.

Following is a complete list of the awards made Tuesday night:

AUTO WRECKED, UNKNOWN CAR BLAMED FOR CRASH

A Ford coach belonging to Harold G. Scott of Highland, parked along the road not far from the Catholic Church at Stony Hollow was wrecked about 11:30 Tuesday forenoon, when it was struck head-on by one of the McBride milk trucks, driven by Russell H. Arnold of Goshen.

An unknown car, which according to Arnold was the cause of the accident, went on without stopping.

From the story told Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Senecal, the milk truck was coming toward Kingston and was near the parked car belonging to Scott, when another car came up the road headed toward West Hurley. The strange car tried at first to pass between the milk truck and the parked car, then swung directly to its left. The driver of the truck, noticing that there were children in the approaching car, pulled to his left to avoid striking it and crashed head on into the parked car, which was driven off the road and into a pine tree, winding up a pretty complete wreck.

It is understood that Scott, who was not in his car when it was struck, was looking after some traps.

The Smart new FORD V-8 Coupe

YOUR eyes will tell you that the new 1935 Ford V-8 coupe is one of the most beautifully designed cars you can drive today.

But a ride will tell you even more. First of all, you will find that the new Ford V-8 coupe is an unusually roomy car. Inches have been added to leg, elbow and head room. The seat has been widened four inches. Doors are wider. And there's ample space for luggage—even when the rumble seat is occupied.

The roominess of the Ford V-8 coupe is matched by its new easy-riding qualities. New soft, "slow-motion" springs—a springbase 123 inches long—improved weight distribution—larger, air-balloon tires—together they make this new Ford one of the most comfortable cars you can ride in.

There's comfort, too, in Ford V-8 safety. Safety glass is standard equipment throughout—without extra cost. Welded all-steel body reinforced with steel. The new and more powerful brakes stop you swiftly, gently, with less pedal pressure. The 85 horsepower V-8 engine gives you a reserve of power for any emergency.

See this new Ford coupe at your nearest dealer's. Find out how little it costs to buy and how economical it is to run.
